Washington, Mar. 18.—The house today passed the soldiers' bonus bill. The result indicated there are sufficient votes in the house to override a presidential veto.

The vote came after 40 minutes debate under rules requiring a two-thirds majority and barring amendments.

As sent to the senate the bill provides for paid-up 20-year endowment life insurance policies and cash payments to those veterans not entitled to more than $50 in adjusted compensation.

The vote was 353 to 54. The margin over the necessary two-thirds vote was 82.

SOLONS TO BE ASKED TO PAY HAIL LOSSES

Insurance Department Will Make Proposals to the Next Legislature

The next legislature will be asked to make possible payment of 1923 hail insurance claims at 100 cents on the dollar, it is explained in a circular issued by the state hail department, in line with a previous announcement made. The circular letter says:

"At the time hail warrants for 1923 were mailed out to their respective owners, it was thought that petitions might be circulated for the initiation of a measure amending Section 7 of the Hail Insurance Law so as to make possible the payment in full of indemnities for hail losses suffered during the past season, instead of paying only 80 percent of the same."

"On investigation it was found, however, that it wasn't such an easy matter to perfect after all. Thousands of petitions would need to be circulated, printing done, etc., and the expense in that connection naturally could not be borne by the Department, and as nobody seemed particularly anxious to back the proposition, it was thought best to leave the matter for the Legislature to decide."

We are accordingly recommending to the Legislature that the Hail Insurance Law be amended so as to enable payment of the 20 percent balance now outstanding. There may be objections raised to such an amendment on the ground that part of the surplus fund originally created as a permanent surplus would be used for other purposes than intended. That is true in a way, but the Department feels that no serious consequence will result through part of the surplus being used for such purpose, if proper safeguard is made that shortage does not recur in the future. The proposed changes to the Law will embody such provision.

"The Department has proposed four sets of measures distinct in themselves and still identically the same so far as producing results are concerned. The Legislature we trust will follow our recommendation and adopt one of the plans or substitute something better."

"In the meantime nothing can be done by the Department but to ask the claimants to wait patiently for such action as the Legislature may see fit to take."

NEW RULING ON HAIL INSURANCE

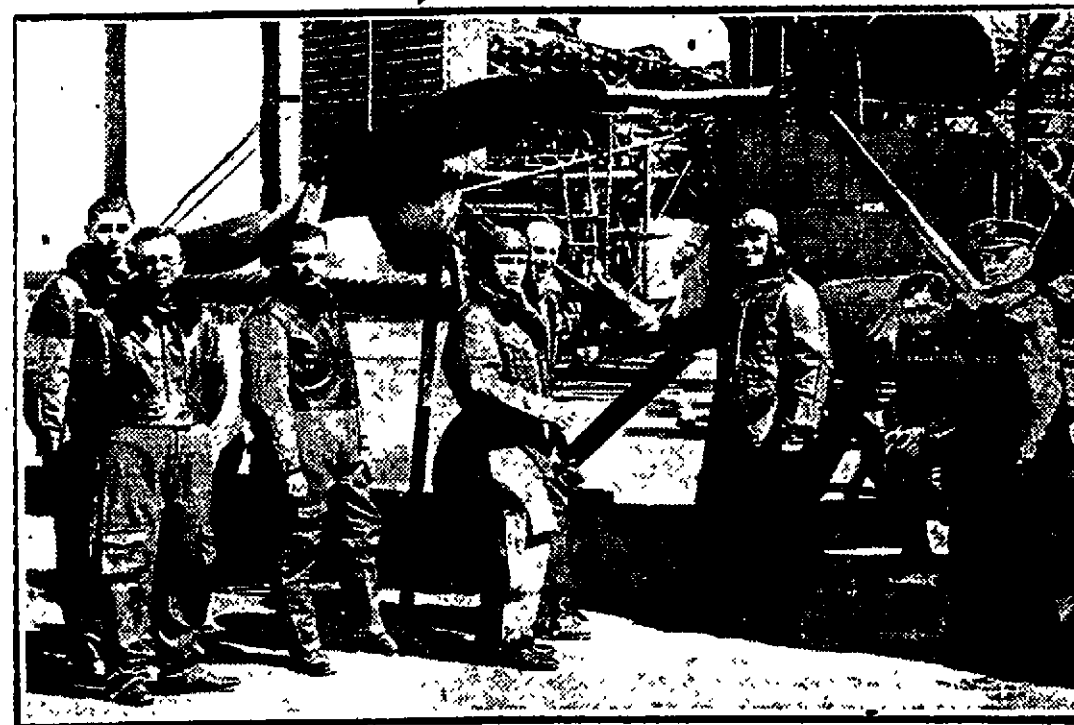

The state hail insurance department in an amended ruling on agents withdrawing land from the hail indemnity fund, provides that "when agent signs affidavit of withdrawal for the owner, such agent must state under oath that he is agent for such owner and has a right to make affidavit of withdrawal from hail indemnity fund in his stead. The declaration may be stated in this way: 'Agent, with power to withdraw.'"

The ruling is being forwarded to county auditors and notary public.

Secretary of Treasury to be

Washington, Mar. 18.—By the A. P.—Subpoenas were issued today for Secretaries Mellon and Weeks by the senate committee investigating Attorney-General Daugherty.

The two secretaries were to be questioned about the government contract with the Standard Aircraft Corporation in connection with Gaston B. Means previous testimony that he accepted $100,000 for the late Jess W. Smith to stop further legal action.

Prohibition commissioner Haynes and Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair also were summoned, presumably for questioning about Means' assertion that he "got" Secretary Mellon in an investigation of the issue of permits for withdrawals of whiskey.

Alfred R. Urion, a lawyer named in the alleged film "don't" also was subpoenaed as was H. H. Votaw, superintendent of federal prisoners and a relative by marriage of the late President Harding.

Continued Attack
Washington, March 18.—Attorney General Daugherty's foes continued yesterday afternoon to pile in testimony and connect him directly with the prize fight film again struck back, this time grace charges of blackmail.

The most direct testimony yet given before the senate investigating committee, in an effort to connect the attorney general directly with the conspiracy to show motion picture prize fight in violation of federal law while various points were prosecuted and fined small sums, came from G. O. Holdridge, former department of justice agent, who presented a witnessed report of a conversation he said he had with Jap Muma, already identified in the inquiry as one of the owners of the films.

Based on Talk
Holdridge quoted Muma as having quoted Attorney General Daugherty as having said to him in Washington: "If you put this across you ought to get a big cut, not less than fifty per cent."

On vigorous cross examination by the attorney general's counsel, Holdridge conceded that he had nothing else to substantiate the charge that the attorney general was part of the conspiracy. Previous testimony has been that Jess W. Smith, the attorney general's late friend, boasted that "we could get $100,000 by protecting the fight film owners from prosecution and that various sums of money were collected for Smith on that account."

Formulating is many particulars the previous testimony of Gaston B. Means and Fred C. Quimby, Holdridge related a circumstantial story of his investigation of the alleged arrangement by which the fight films were exhibited in 1921.

Chicago Police Believe They Have Uncovered Ring Which Got More Than $8,000,000 From Insurance Companies

Chicago, Mar. 18.—An alleged ring of diamond thieves, who for several years have been directing additions in order to collect their insurance and who are believed to have obtained more than $8,000,000 from insurance companies has been uncovered here, according to police who are holding four men and a woman for questioning.

The revelations are said to have been brought about by New York private detectives who employed the Atchison, Kansas, psychic seeress. The medium is said to have detailed the operations of a Chicago gang of jewel thieves who obtained the collars of policemen in fake robberies started to collect theft insurance.

The jewel thieves are said to employ a woman accomplice, a diamond salesman to whom the proposed to participate in a sham robbery is made. After the robbery the jewels are returned, according to detectives, with the exception of 10 percent of the insurance money and 10 percent of the diamonds which are given to the man who arranges the robberies.

FINE WEATHER BRINGS VOTERS TO THE POLLS

Sun Beams Down in Almost Every Part of the State.
Indicating Big Vote

ALL ROADS ARE OPEN

Rural Vote Probably Will Be Much Heavier Than It Was
Four Years Ago

TO ISSUE EXTRA
The Tribune will issue an election extra Wednesday morning, giving the latest vote tabulations as gathered throughout the state. It will be on sale on the streets early in the morning.

With the thermometer well above freezing, with all roads open and with a bright sunshine beaming down on nearly every section of North Dakota today, it was expected that a big vote would be rolled up in the presidential preference primary today.

City elections in several cities of the state also served to increase the interest in the election and to bring out the vote. With a heavy city vote expected, there was conjecture as to what would happen in the country. But with the Nonpartisan League making a drive against the election laws and for the Fledge bill it was considered more than likely that a large rural vote also would be registered.

The polls will close at 7 p. m. for the first time in some years, the legislative having reduced the time the polls close from 9 p. m.

The Coolidge and Johnson organizations in some places were working to get out the vote, but not to any great extent. There was more work along this line by the league and independent organizations, with the measures as the chief reasons for the activity.

The close of the campaign found L. B. Hanna, Coolidge manager, declaring that the state would roll up a real vote of confidence for the President as against Hiram Johnson and Robert M. LaFollette.

The Tribune will post bulletins after 9 p. m. tonight.

Because of the blizzard four years ago, on March 16, a very light vote was cast. Hiram Johnson received 30,375 votes for the Republican presidential endorsement, Leonard Wood 28,787 and Frank O. Lowden 265, a total of 61,425 votes being cast.

William J. Bryan received 340 Democratic votes and Wm. McAdoo 49.

STICKER CAMPAIGN
The force of the LaFollette sticker campaign was expected to be felt more in the rural districts than in the cities. There was practically no evidence of LaFollette stickers around polls here during the morning.

The vote at noon was not more than 15 percent of the total.

Mandan reported many LaFollette stickers were in evidence, but at Jamestown they were not being distributed at the polls.

BIG VOTE IN MANDAN
Mandan, Mar. 18.—The largest vote polled in years is expected by the time the polls close at 7 o'clock tonight due to an extremely heated and bitter fight for city commissioner positions. H. L. Henke, president, and Nels H. Rohrer, waterworks commissioner, out for reelection, are opposed by Dr. A. O. Henderson for President and Ben Anderson, N. P. yard master, J. B. Frederick, present commissioner, is seeking reelection, opposed by H. A. Schmidt.

KILLED AT PRAYER

Fred Janssen Says That He Hired Mexican For $150
to Kill His Wife

Pueblo, Colo., March 18.—(By the A. P.)—An unnamed Mexican implicated in the confession of Fred Janssen yesterday following his arrest here in connection with the finding of the body of Mrs. Bella Janssen, his wife, in a trunk at Ogden, Utah, Saturday remained today the only apparently unknown element in the trunk murder.

Janssen, who calmly confessed the details of the murder to the police, saying he had employed the Mexican to kill his wife because he feared she would kill him, was arrested in a tavern near here yesterday after police officers patrolling the road had stepped the car in which he was riding.

Last night and today Janssen was questioned but no information was given out afterwards. Janssen will be returned to Denver tomorrow.

In his alleged confession Janssen said he was called last Thursday while he was kneeling in prayer in his Denver home. He denied taking an actual part in the killing but admitted making all the preparations, even to letting the Mexican into the house and pushing the "casket trunk" into the room for the Mexican to use in boxing up the body. Janssen declared, however, that he did not see the body and that he was not in the room when his wife was slain.

Took 35 Minutes
In 35 minutes, according to Janssen's story, the Mexican killed Mrs. Janssen, stuffed the body in the trunk and had slipped away after he, Janssen, had given him $150. Janssen insisted he engineered the trunk slaying because his wife had said she intended to kill him. Two years ago, he said, he received a box of candy from a man in Pittsburgh whose given name was Calm and the box in which the candy came also contained a pistol, he asserted.

When arrested Janssen had in his possession more than $1,500 in bills of large denominations. In his pocket also was found his wife's wedding ring and the rosary she was using in the prayer when she died.

Langley's Invention
"Not many years ago Prof. George Langley saw the concrete expression of a life's effort and sublime faith fail miserably at the Capitol of the nation. Multitudes of curious onlookers, including the representatives of this and other nations, smiled and jeered at that futile effort. Yet because of that faith and effort, we today see the birds of the air outwitted in speed and intricate evolution by the heavier than air machine. But what of Langley the pioneer, in his long, patient effort to conquer and subdue the forces of the air? He went out of that great crowd with bowed head, crushed by the weight of the thoughtless laughter of the crowd and died heartbroken. Yet every principle of the machine that is today adopted in the Wright machine that a few years later succeeded Langley never saw his faith vindicated or his big dream come true and with the pioneers of new countries, who with a vision far beyond and with faith unshakable blazed the pathway from the Alleghenies to the Pacific."

Police announced last night a charge of murder would be filed against Janssen.

NEW SURPRISES SPRUNG

Cleveland Man Says Secretary
Fall Asked Him to Falsify
Loan Tale

Washington, Mar. 18.—The oil committee yesterday is dealing with a double-barreled surprise today in the form of fresh evidence of oil stock speculating by government officials and further testimony about the famous $100,000 loan to Albert B. Hall.

Brokers' records submitted by an expert accountant showed that Attorney-General Daugherty had dealt in both Sinclair and Doheny stocks since he entered the cabinet, that C. Bascom Slep now secretary to President Coolidge, also bought some Doheny stock before he retired from Congress in 1923 and that there were records of dealings also by Senators Curtis of Kansas, Elkins of West Virginia and a number of representatives.

Price McKinney of Cleveland then testified the committee was inquiring into Fall's finances to have McKinney say that he had loaned $100,000 to the former Secretary. That was before Fall made the same proposal to E. B. McLean.

At the time, was a member of the house. Other representatives dealing in the stock include A. B. Rose of Kentucky, Wells G. Koonitz of West Virginia, Thomas J. Ryan of New York and J. H. Hines of Ohio.

The names were disclosed before the senate oil committee by Louis F. Bond, a federal trade commission accountant, who has examined the books of a number of brokerage houses.

Daugherty Profited
Attorney-General Daugherty bought one thousand shares of Pan American (the Doheny company) that leased the California reserve) and sold at a profit of $544.50, the accountant said. Mr. Daugherty himself had disclosed previously that he had had some dealing in Sinclair stocks both before and after he entered the cabinet.

The Attorney-General's account with W. H. Hibbs and Company of Washington was opened in November 1921. Bond said, in his own name and subsequently changed to the name of Sen. W. H. Hibbs, a name of Hibbs and Company. On October 9, 1922 the company sold 500 shares of Sinclair Consolidated and on October 27 he purchased an equal amount to the same stock, Bond said.

Curtis Bought Small Lot
Senator Curtis, who is the assistant Republican leader of the senate, was said by the witness to have bought 100 shares of Sinclair Consolidated on Feb. 25, 1922. The record indicated it was a "straight" purchase. Senator Elkins bought 8,700 shares of Sinclair Consolidated on November 16, 1922 at a cost of $392,355. He sold 7,700 shares on May 24, 1923, at $272,924 and took "straight delivery" on the remaining 1,000 shares. Bond told the committee that Slep bought 100 shares of Mexican Petroleum for "P. W. Slep" and sold them at a net profit of $381. He then bought on June 25, 1922, one thousand shares of Mexican Seaboard, another Sinclair company, and sold at a profit of $1,484.28.

Representative Ryan, the witness said, dealt in 5,400 shares of Sinclair stock and 700 shares of Doheny stock in 1922 and 1923 and realized a net profit of $8,645.

SOLONS TO BE ASKED TO PAY HAIL LOSSES

Insurance Department Will Make Proposals to the Next Legislature

The next legislature will be asked to make possible payment of 1923 hail insurance claims at 100 cents on the dollar, it is explained in a circular issued by the state hail department, in line with a previous announcement made. The circular letter says:

"At the time hail warrants for 1923 were mailed out to their respective owners, it was thought that petitions of a measure amending Section 7 of the Hail Insurance Law so as to make possible the payment in full of indemnities for hail losses suffered during the past season, instead of paying only 80 percent of the same."

We are accordingly recommending to the Legislature that the Hail Insurance Law be amended so as to enable payment of the 20 percent balance now outstanding. The state hail insurance department in an amended ruling on agents withdrawing land from the hail indemnity tax, provides that "when agent signs affidavit of withdrawal for the owner, such agent must state under oath that he is agent for such owner and has a right to make affidavit of withdrawal from hail indemnity tax in his stead. The declaration may be stated in this way: 'Agent, with power to withdraw.'"

The ruling is being forwarded to county auditors and notary publics.

Chicago Police Believe They Have Uncovered Ring Which Got More Than $8,000,000 From Insurance Companies

Chicago, Mar. 18.—An alleged ring of diamond thieves who for several years have been directing holdups in order to collect their insurance and who are believed to have obtained more than $8,000,000 from insurance concerns has been uncovered here, according to police, who are holding four men and a woman for questioning.

The Coolidge and Johnson organizations in some places were working to get out the vote, but not to any great extent. There was more work along this line by the league and independent organizations, with the measures as the chief reasons for the activity.

The close of the campaign found L. B. Hanna, Coolidge manager, declaring that the state would roll up a real vote of confidence for the Coolidge ticket.

The Tribune will post bulletins after 9 p. m. tonight. Because of the blizzard four years ago, on March 16, a very light vote was cast. Hiram Johnson received 30,573 votes for the Republican presidential ticket, Leonard Wood 987 and Frank O. Lowden 265, a total of 31,825 votes being cast.

William J. Bryan received 340 Democratic votes and Wm. McAdoo 49.

STICKER CAMPAIGN

The force of the LaFollette sticker campaign was expected to be felt more in the rural districts than in the cities. There was practically no evidence of LaFollette stickers around polls here during the morning. The vote at noon was not more than 15 percent of the total.

Mandan reported many LaFollette stickers were in evidence, but at Jamestown they were not being distributed at the polls.

BIG VOTE IN MANDAN

Mandan, Mar. 18.—The largest vote polled in years is expected by the time the polls close at 7 o'clock tonight due to an extremely heated and bitter fight for city commissioner positions. H. L. Frederick, present commissioner, is seeking reelection, opposed by H. A. Schmidt.

STATE STILL BENEFITS

Heritage of Sturdy Pioneers Is Still Evident in North Dakota, He Says

Minneapolis, Mar. 18.—The best of adventurous pioneers settled in North Dakota, a heritage from which the state still benefits, J. M. Devine, Commissioner of Immigration of North Dakota, declared in a radio talk over WLJG station here last night.

Mr. Devine, during his talk on "The Making of North Dakota" sought to disabuse auditors of the idea that North Dakota is a cold, wind-swept, barren land. He spoke of the abundance of plant life, birds and flowers, and traced the career of many of the famous characters of the state.

In paying his tribute to the pioneers Mr. Devine said:

"We were fortunate in the kind and character of our original pioneer settlers. Of the native born they came largely from the older eastern and middle-west states; and from out of those states came the best type of men and women, who came to build a home upon the wide prairies of the new territory."

"Pioneering in a new country is a severe test of courage and endurance. As a general rule, the journey is long; the road rough; the hills steep, and only those physically and mentally fit can last that journey."

Some of the early pioneers, eager to build a home upon the wide prairies of the new territory, flung prairies of the new territory, the section of the country from whence they came or journeyed on across the Rockies to the older and more settled up western states.

Langley's Invention

"Not many years ago Prof. George Langley saw the concrete expression of a life's effort and sublime faith of a nation, the Capitol of the nation. Multitudes of curious on-lookers, including the representatives of this and other nations, smiled and jeered at the pitiable result. Yet because of that faith and effort, we today see the birds of the air outvied in speed and intricate evolution by the heavier than air machine. But what of Langley the pioneer, in his long, patient effort to conquer and subdue the forces of the air? He went out of that great crowd with bowed head, cruelly hurt because of the thoughtless laughter of the crowd and died broken-hearted. Yet every principle of the machine that failed was adopted in the Wright machine that a few years later succeeded."

Langley never said his faith vindicated or his big dream came true. So with the pioneers in a new country, who with a vision far seeing and with faith unshakable blazed the pathway from the Alleghenies to the Pacific.

PROGRESS IS MADE IN FIGHTING FIRE IN HAYNES, N. D. COAL MINE

Work of fighting fire in the mine of the Haynes Coal Mining Company at Haynes, North Dakota, is still being carried on, after several weeks effort state mine officials believe that great progress has been made, according to W. S. Stratton, who has returned from Haynes.

Belief is now expressed that if the work of throttling and putting out the fire can continue much of the Haynes lignite mine will be saved, and a spread to the mine of the state of South Dakota and to coal land of the state of North Dakota will be prevented.

The fire is being fought with water, and using it, according to Mr. Stratton. Pillars and ribs are pulled out of entries, the top dynamited and the second vein clay wetted down, sealing up the entry, he said. This practice is carried on until a portion of the coal vein is segregated, and if the fire continues to burn it will take but a small section.

The fire fighting probably will continue for weeks.

CONFESSES HE HIRED MAN TO SLAY HIS WIFE

Trunk Murder of Colorado Is Solved with the Arrests of Church Janitor

KILLED AT PRAYER

Fred Janssen Says That He Hired Mexican For $150 to Kill His Wife

Pueblo, Colo., March 18.—(By the A. P.)—An unnamed Mexican implicated in the confession of Fred Janssen yesterday following his arrest here in connection with the finding of the body of Mrs. Bella Janssen, his wife, in a trunk at Ogden, Utah, Saturday remained today the only apparently unknown element in the trunk murder.

Janssen, who calmly confessed the details of the murder to the police, saying he had employed the Mexican to kill his wife because he feared she would kill him, was arrested in a taxicab near here yesterday after police officers patrolling the road had stopped the car in which he was riding.

Last night and today Janssen was questioned but no information was given out afterwards. Janssen will be returned to Denver tomorrow.

In his alleged confession Janssen said his wife was killed last Thursday while she was kneeling in prayer in their Denver home. He denied taking an actual part in the killing but admitted making all the preparations, even to letting the Mexican into the house and pushing the Mexican to use in boxing up the body.

Janssen declared, however, that he did not see the body and that he was not in the room when his wife was slain.

It was stated that Janssen's story, the Mexican killed Mrs. Janssen, stuffed the body in the trunk and had slipped away after he Janssen, had given him $150. Janssen insisted he engineered the trunk slaying because his wife had said she intended to kill him. Two years ago, he said, he received a box of candy from a man in Pittsburgh whose given name was Calm and the box in which the candy came also contained a pistol, he asserted.

When arrested Janssen had in his possession more than $1,200 in bills of large denominations. In his pocket also was found his wife's wedding ring and the rosary she was using in the prayer which ended in death.

TOOK 35 MINUTES

In 35 minutes, according to Janssen's story, the Mexican killed Mrs. Janssen, stuffed the body in the trunk and had slipped away after he Janssen, had given him $150. Two years ago, he said, he received a box of candy from a man in Pittsburgh whose given name was Calm and the box in which the candy came also contained a pistol, he asserted.

DAUGHERTY'S NAME BROUGHT IN OIL PROBE

Dealt in Oil Stocks, Brokers Testifies; Slemp, Senators Also Dealt in Them

NEW SURPRISES SPRUNG

Cleveland Man Says Secretary Fall Asked Him to Falsify Loan Tale

Washington, Mar. 18.—The oil committee resumed its hearing today in the form of fresh evidence of oil stock speculation by government officials and further testimony about the famous $100,000 loan to Albert B. Fall.

Brokers' records submitted by an expert accountant showed that Attorney-General Daugherty had dealt in both Sinclair and Doheny stocks since he entered the cabinet, that C. Bascom Slemp, now secretary to President Coolidge, also bought some Doheny stock before he retired from Congress in 1923 and that there were records of dealings also by Senators Curtis of Kansas, Elkins of West Virginia and a number of representatives.

Price McKinney of Cleveland then testified the committee was inquiring into Fall's finances to have McKinney say that he had loaned $100,000 to the former Secretary. That was before Fall made the same proposal to E. B. McLean.

Slemp, at the time, was a member of the federal trade commission dealing in the stock included A. B. Rose of Kentucky; Wells G. Koontz of West Virginia; Thomas J. Ryan of New York and J. H. Hines of Ohio.

The names were disclosed before the senate oil committee by Louis F. Bond, a federal trade commission accountant, who has examined the books of a number of brokerage houses.

DAUGHERTY PROFITED

Attorney-General Daugherty bought one thousand shares of Pan American (the Doheny company that leased the California oil field) and sold a profit of $543.50, the accountant said. Mr. Daugherty himself had disclosed previously that he had had some dealing in Sinclair stocks both before and after he entered the cabinet.

The Attorney-General's account was given by Wm. Hibbs and Company of Washington was given in November 1921. Bond said, in his own name and subsequently changed to the name of W. W. Spaid, a name of Hibbs and Company. On October 9, 1922 the company sold 500 shares of Sinclair Consolidated and on October 27 he purchased 100 shares of the same stock, Bond said.

Curtis Bought Small Lot

Senator Curtis, who is the assistant Republican leader of the senate, was said by the witness to have bought 100 shares of Sinclair Consolidated on Feb. 23, 1922. The records indicated he was a "straight" purchase. Senator Elkins bought 8,700 shares of Sinclair Consolidated on November 16, 1922 at a cost of $302,355. He sold 7,700 shares on May 24, 1923, at $272,924 and took "straight delivery" on the remaining 1,000 shares. Bond told the committee that Slemp bought 100 shares of Mexican Petroleum Co. "P. W. Slemp" and sold them at a net profit of $581. He then bought on June 23, 1922, one thousand shares of Mexican Seaboard, another Sinclair company, and sold at a profit of $1,454.38.

Representative Ryan, the witness said, dealt in 5,400 shares of Sinclair stock and 700 shares of Doheny stock in 1922 and 1923 and realized a net profit of $8,645.

JOHNSON MEN "SORE" AFTER VOTE BATTLE

Claim North Dakota Nonpartisan Refused to Publish Advertisement in Issue

FRAZIER IS ASSAILED

Handled LaFollette Sticker Campaign, Statement of C. D. King in Letter

Charges that the editor of the North Dakota Nonpartisan, John Bloom, declined to run an advertisement for Hiram Johnson in the state presidential primary campaign and allegations that one of the members of the league state executive committee (Roy Frazier) sent out LaFollette stickers without the consent of the other members of the committee were made by former State Senator C. D. King, Monarch, Nonpartisan and Hiram Johnson follower, in a letter broadcast to league precinct workers throughout the state.

The letter was answered by E. A. Vogel of Colburn, league representative in the legislature in a telegram to many county league chairman, which assailed the King letter as a clever deception.

The close of the primary campaign found many league leaders divided on the question of the state's presidential choice. A. G. Sorlie, league candidate for Governor, was a Johnson man, the latter's supporters claimed.

King, in his form letter, declared that one of the members of our executive committee, a college supporter, without the consent of the other members of the committee, is conducting a sticker campaign. He is sending out from his office stickers and literature under Mr. Vogel's name," King referred to Roy Frazier.

Without Authority

Continuing he said: "The article on the first page of the Dakota Nonpartisan this week urging voters to write in the name of LaFollette was published without the consent, knowledge or authority of the League Executive Committee, which committee immediately met and condemned the publication of said article, and S. S. McDonald, the secretary-treasurer of the Nonpartisan League, issued the following statement:

"The executive committee of the Nonpartisan League, in accordance with the action and the instruction of the state convention has taken no action in the presidential primary election in sending out literature or in any other manner supporting any presidential candidate.

"The only activity of the committee in connection with the presidential primary has been in urging the defeat of the election laws and the bank tax bill."

McDonald and Ole Knutson, two of the three members of the league state executive committee, were understood to be Johnson supporters.

King's letter, which was sent March 12, also included the advertisement which he said the North Dakota Nonpartisan declined to run. The North Dakota Nonpartisan issue referred to contained as a political advertisement the ticket of the Woolledge-Perry Democrats and pleas for the candidates, and carried the LaFollette ticket.

Foreword Given

The foreword of King to the advertisement for Hiram Johnson follows: "This is the advertisement which the editor of the North Dakota Nonpartisan, after he had accepted it, refused to run, despite the fact that he had been given instructions by the League Executive Committee to be absolutely fair to all presidential candidates. The committee immediately called the editor on the carpet and the editor had no explanation to make for his refusal to run it. The advertisement, as you will note, referred principally to the McNary-Haugen export corporation bill to put the farmers of North Dakota on their feet and which bill has the endorsement of Senators Frazier and Norris and Congressman Sinclair. No other newspaper in North Dakota refused to run Johnson advertising."

F. A. Vogel, in his telegram to workers after the King letter went out, said: "Carroll King with shipping board Lasker's money, trying to steal LaFollette supporters' votes for Hiram Johnson. Notify all your precinct committeemen at once to see that every voter has LaFollette stickers and uses them. King's letter, of twelfth most clever deception ever written and a lie from top to bottom."

PIONEERS ARE PAID TRIBUTE BY J. M. DEVINE

There is order that untold millions might follow in the ever onward march of the people westward. Not any of that heroic band of Nation Builders ever saw the completed success of their labors or their dreams come true. Such, not infrequently, is the fate of those who toil to create new advanced steps in the field of science; education, or strive to build homes in the wide uncharted stretches of a new land. Yet, let it be said of those brave, sturdy, souls, whose destiny it was to sow where others reap, they too shall have their high place on the unwritten scrolls of time.

"Happily indeed was it for North Dakota and for all the generations to come, that the very rarely planned and brought with their deep and abiding faith in the great fundamental principles of law, order, society, home and school. Upon these, as the firm foundation, they erected the superstructure of the new state. Because of that fact North Dakota today is above everything else a state of law, order, homes, churches and schools."

What T. R. Gained

Mr. Devine, telling of Theodore Roosevelt's time spent in the North Dakota Badlands declared the prizes gave him many qualities which aided him in the great past he played in the nation's affairs.

"On the westerner always a westerner," said Mr. Devine. "Theodore Roosevelt thought and fought as did the men of the west and of his section, day and time. He dodged no issue, feared no man. He put his cards on the table face up and called for a square deal, and North Dakota claims him and always will as her very own."

"In his campaign for renomination and filling a speaking itinerary from New York to California, he stopped off at the city of Fargo, North Dakota. It was my privilege to sit within a few feet of him, as he stood on the veranda of the Waldorf Hotel and addressed the great crowd who had come miles to hear him. His opening statement was as follows:

"I am delighted once more to be in North Dakota, the state of my heart. I wish to say to you, my friends, that if I had not lived in North Dakota, I never would have been President of the United States."

Mr. Devine declared of Roosevelt that "it was in the east and at Harp- yard he secured his mental training and equipment, but it was in the banks of the Little Missouri under God's guiding eye that he was made ready to wear Moses for the great responsibilities that were to be entrusted to his hands."

REFUGE PLAN IS EXTENDED

Game Preserves Being Established Over State

The state game and fish commission will continue to enlarge on its game and refuge plan. E. T. Judd, state fish commissioner, told a gathering here recently to hear game laws explained.

Mr. Judd directed attention to the Game and Fish Laws, stating that in his opinion they compared favorably with the laws of other states and were liberal in their terms as regards the open seasons for the several species of game and fish. He said that while our native prairie chickens, sharp-shinned and buffed grouse, were the noblest of game birds, and were more numerous in North Dakota than in other states, yet in his opinion, the Chinese or ring-necked pheasant had a place in our game life, and that most of the criticism of them as tending to drive out our native birds was not based on facts or proved by any reliable data. He further stated that the game refuge plan was, and would continue to be, a prime factor in the conservation of our native and exotic species of game birds. The commission has obtained 100 pair of Hungarian partridges for distribution in the state which it is believed will do well in the western part of the state, and perhaps in the eastern part.

In fish work he stated that the hatchery at Spiritwood Lake would operate this spring, and that a good supply of eggs had been obtained, mostly the wall-eyed pike, some steel-head trout. Plans were being made to distribute many of the native fish from well-stocked waters to those that need to be stocked.

Mr. Judd also wished to stress the fact that no part of the cost of operating the Game and Fish Department was born by the taxpayers, as all funds were obtained by the sale of hunting and trapping licenses, and that several thousands of dollars were turned in the State School funds from fines imposed on violators of the game laws.

Mr. Eastgate slides of some 50 of our native birds with remarks thereon were interesting and educational. This talk was listened to by a small but much interested audience, a great many Boy Scouts being present. Mr. Eastgate stressed the fact that the crow was a very destructive bird, and that by reason of its depredations, the supply of game and bird life was much reduced; he advised concerted action in getting rid of it. In speaking of the hawk family, Mr. Eastgate said that most of the hawks were beneficial to the interests of the farmer, as their food was largely rodents and insects, and the hawks should be protected rather than exterminated.

BUYING TRUST IS PROPOSED BY MR. HOOVER

Would Have American Manufacturers Join in Purchasing Raw Materials

SAVING TO CONSUMERS

Washington, March 18.—Nine raw materials essential to American industry and agriculture, whose principal production sources are abroad, are controlled in greater or less degree by combinations of foreign producing organizations, Secretary Hoover wrote to Senator Capper, Republican, Kansas.

The circumstances affecting each commodity have been determined by special Commerce department investigations, and the secretary asserted that the situation required federal legislation, suggesting particularly modification of foreign trade statutes to allow American purchasers to combine in their buying, without regard to existing anti-trust laws.

He advocated the extension of the Webb-Pomeroy act, which allows American producers to combine for the purpose of selling in export so as to permit the setting up of common purchasing agencies by American interests which utilize the imported foreign raw materials.

"Foreign monopolies or combinations are potentially or actually in control of prices and distribution of the following commodities," Mr. Hoover's letter said:

"Sisal for binding twine is controlled through a combination of producers reinforced by legislative action of the Yucatan government.

Nitrates, iodine, controlled

"Nitrates and iodine are controlled through a British selling agency and reinforced by export duties in Chile.

"Potash is controlled by combination of German producers.

"Gutta rubber and gutta percha are controlled partly by legislative and partly by voluntary combinations of producers in the British and Dutch colonies.

"Quinine is controlled by combination of Dutch producers.

"Tin is controlled by combination of British producers.

"Mercury is controlled by common selling agency of Spanish and Australian mines.

"Brazil Controls Coffee."

"Coffee is controlled by the government of Brazil."

"Guano (for tanning purposes) is controlled by combination of producers and foreign manufacturers.

"You will notice the importance of most of these commodities to the farmer."

"The value of our total imports of the above in 1923 exceeded $525,000,000, and prices are undoubtedly much higher than otherwise would be the case. There are several others of partial control or of minor order aggregating altogether large sums.

Affect Cost of Living

"The prices of these commodities enter into the cost of living of all our people. An instance of the special importance to the farmer lies in his need for binder twine, where although present prices are possibly not extortionate, yet a few years ago they were deliberately advanced 500 per cent, and during the period fully $100,000,000 of excess prices was taken from our producers, which apparently did not even reach the Mexican farmer. Such combinations cannot, of course, be effectively reached under the Sherman act, as they are or can be seated outside of our jurisdiction.

FOUNDER CASHIER ACCUSED

Cartwright, N. D., Mar. 18. S. R. Otis, formerly cashier of the First State bank of Cartwright, which was closed a few months ago, was arrested on the charge of accepting deposits in an insolvent bank. The complaint was signed by J. D. Engstrom, a depositor.

Otis's bond was placed at $1,500 which was furnished.

DEATH CAUSED BY WEAK HEART

The death of Charles Cosgrove, aged 80, who was found dead in his bed at 17 Front street, where he lived alone, was caused by heart failure, it was decided at a coroner's inquest. Cosgrove was lying across the bed fully clothed when neighbors found the body. A sister, Mrs. J. Sullivan of Moorhead, Minn., arrived here last night to look after his affairs. The body will be interred in St. Mary's cemetery, probably tomorrow.

Fessenden, Mar. 18.—The campaign manager of Senator Hiram W. Senator Johnson's picture with which the senator was highly elated and which he photographed.

Speiser lost no time in obtaining an interview with Senator Johnson. Evidently realizing the priority of the war over campaign issues when

JOHNSON MEN "SORE" AFTER VOTE BATTLE

Claim North Dakota Nonpartisan Refused to Publish Advertisement in Issue

FRAZIER IS ASSAILED

Handled LaFollette Sticker Campaign, Statement of C. D. King in Letter

Charges that the editor of the North Dakota Nonpartisan, John Bloom, declined to run an advertisement for Hiram Johnson in the state presidential primary campaign and allegations that one of the members of the league state executive committee (Roy Frazier) sent out LaFollette "stickers" without the consent of the other members of the committee were made by former State Senator C. D. King of Menoken, Nonpartisan and Hiram Johnson follower, in a form letter broadcast to league precinct workers throughout the state.

The letter was answered by F. A. Vogel of Coleharbor, league representative in the legislature in a telegram to many county league chairman, which assailed the King letter as a clever deception.

The close of the primary campaign found many league leaders divided on the question of the state's presidential choice. A. C. Sorlie, league candidate for Governor, was a Johnson man, the latter's supporters claimed.

King, in his form letter, declared that:

"One of the members of our executive committee, a Coolidge supporter, without the consent of the other members of the committee, is conducting a sticker campaign. He is sending out from his office stickers and literature under Mr. Vogel's name." King referred to Roy Frazier.

Without Authority

Continuing he said: "The article on the first page of the Dakota Nonpartisan this week urging voters to write in the name of LaFollette was published without the consent, knowledge or authority of the League executive committee, which committee immediately met and condemned the publication of said article, and S. S. McDonald, the secretary-treasurer of the Nonpartisan League, issued the following statement:

"The executive committee of the Nonpartisan League, in accordance with the action and the instruction of the state convention has taken no action in the presidential primary election in sending out literature or in any other manner supporting any presidential candidate.

"The only activity of the committee in connection with the presidential primary has been in urging the defeat of the election laws and the bank tax bill."

McDonald and Ole Knutson, two of the three members of the league state executive committee, were understood to be Johnson supporters.

King's letter, which was sent March 12, also included the advertisement which he said the North Dakota Nonpartisan declined to run. The North Dakota Nonpartisan issue referred to contained as a political advertisement the ticket of the Woolledge-Perry Democrats and pleas for the candidates, and carried the LaFollette ticket.

Foreword Given

The foreword of King to the advertisement for Hiram Johnson follows: "This is the advertisement which the editor of the North Dakota Nonpartisan, after he had accepted it refused to run, despite the fact that he had been given instructions by the League Executive Committee to be absolutely fair to all presidential candidates. The committee immediately called the editor on the carpet and the editor had no explanation to make for his refusal to run it. The advertisement, as you will note, referred principally to the McNary-Haugen export corporation bill to put the farmers of North Dakota on their feet and which bill has the endorsement of Senators Frazier and Norris and Congressman Sinclair. No other newspaper in North Dakota refused to run Johnson advertising."

F. A. Vogel, in his telegram to workers after the King letter went out, said: "Carroll King with shipping board Lasker's money trying to steal LaFollette supporters' votes for Hiram Johnson. Notify all your precinct committeemen at once to see that every voter is informed of the facts and uses them. King's letter, of twelfth most clever deception ever written and a lie from top to bottom."

Pacific in order that untold millions might follow in the ever onward march of the people westward. Not many of that heroic band of Nation Builders ever saw the completed successor of their labors or their dreams come true. Such, not infrequently, is the fate of those who toil to create new advanced steps in the field of science; education, or strive to build homes in the wide uncharted stretches of a new land. Yet, let it be said of those brave, sturdy, souls whose destiny it was to sow where others reap, they too shall have their place on the unwritten Scrolls of Time.

Happily indeed was it for North Dakota and for all the generations to come, that the very early pioneers brought with them a deep and abiding faith in the great fundamental principles of law, order, society, home church, and school. Upon these, as the firm foundation, they erected the super-structure of the new state. Because of that fact North Dakota today is above everything else a state

What T. R. Gained
Mr. Devine, telling of Theodore Roosevelt's time spent in the North Dakota Badlands declared the prairies gave him many qualities which aided him in the great part he played in the nation's affairs.

"Once a westerner always a westerner," said Mr. Devine. "Theodore Roosevelt thought and fought as did the men of the west and of his section, day and time. He dodged no issue, feared no man. He put his cards on the table face up and called for a square deal, and North Dakota claims him and always will as her very own."

"In his campaign for renomination and filling a speaking itinerary from New York to California, he stopped off at the city of Fargo, North Dakota. It was my privilege to sit within a few feet of him, as he stood on the veranda of the Waldorf Hotel and addressed the great crowd who had come miles to hear him. His opening statement was as follows:

"I am delighted once more to be in North Dakota, the state of my heart. I wish to say to you, my friends, that if I had not lived in North Dakota, I never would have been President of the United States."

Mr. Devine declared of Roosevelt that "it was in the east and at Harvard he secured his mental training and equipment, but it was on the banks of the Little Missouri under God's approving eye that he was made ready as was Moses for the great responsibilities that were to be entrusted to his hands."

REFUGE PLAN IS EXTENDED

Game Preserves Being Established Over State

The state game and fish commission will continue to enlarge on its game and refuge plan, E. T. Judd, state fish commissioner, told a gathering here recently to hear game laws explained.

Mr. Judd directed attention to the Game and Fish Laws, stating that in his opinion they compared favorably with the laws of other states and were liberal in their terms as regards the open seasons for the several species of game and fish. He said that while our native prairie chickens, sharp-shinned and ruffed grouse, were the noblest of game birds and were more numerous in North Dakota than in other states, yet in his opinion, the Chinese or ring-necked pheasant had a place in our game life, and that most of the criticism of them as tending to drive out our native birds was not based on facts or proved by any reliable data. He further stated that the game refuge plan was, and would continue to be, a prime factor in the conservation of our native and exotic species of game birds. The Commission has obtained 100 pair of Hungarian partridges for distribution in the state which it is believed will do well in the western part of the state, and perhaps in the eastern part.

In fish work he stated that the hatchery at Spiritwood Lake would operate this spring, and that a good supply of eggs had been obtained, mostly the wall-eyed pike, bass and steel-head trout. Plans were being made to distribute many of the native fish from well-stocked waters to those that need to be restocked. Mr. Judd also wished to stress the fact that no part of the cost of operating the Game and Fish Department was born by the taxpayers, as all funds were obtained by the sale of hunting and trapping licenses, and that several thousands of dollars were turned in the State School funds from fines imposed on violators of the game laws.

Mr. Eastgate's slides of some 50 of our native birds with remarks thereon were interesting and educational. This talk was listened to by a small but much interested audience, a great many Boy Scouts being present. Mr. Eastgate stressed the fact that the crow was a very destructive bird, and that by reason of its depredations, the supply of game and bird life was much reduced; he advised concerted action in getting rid of it. In speaking of the hawk family, Mr. Eastgate said that most of the hawks were beneficial to the interests of the farmer, as their food was largely rodents and insects, and the hawks should be protected rather than exterminated.

"Coffee is controlled by the government of Brazil.

Quebracho (for tanning purposes) is controlled by combination of producers and foreign manufacturers.

"You will notice the importance of most of these commodities to the farmer.

"The value of our total imports of the above in 1923 exceeded $525,000,000, and prices are undoubtedly much higher than otherwise would be the case. There are several others of partial control or of minor order aggregating altogether large sums.

Affect Cost of Living

"The prices of these commodities enter into the cost of living of all our people. An instance of the special importance to the farmer lies in sisal for binder twine, where although present prices are possibly not extortionate, yet a few years ago they were deliberately advanced 500 per cent, and during the period fully $100,000,000 of excess prices was taken from our producers, which apparently did not even reach the Mexican farmer. Such combinations cannot, of course, be effectively reached under the Sherman act, as they are or can be seated outside of our jurisdiction.

FORMER CASHIER ACCUSED

Cartwright, N. D., Mar. 18.—S. R. Otesa, formerly cashier of the First State bank of Cartwright, which was closed a few months ago, was arrested on the charge of accepting deposits in an insolvent bank. The complaint was signed by J. D. Engbertson, a depositor.

Otesa's bond was placed at $1,500 which was furnished.

DEATH CAUSED BY WEAK HEART

The death of Charles Cosgrove, aged 60, who was found dead in his bed at 17 Front street, where he lived alone, was caused by heart failure, it was decided at a coroner's inquest. Cosgrove was lying across the bed fully clothed when neighbors found the body. A sister, Mrs. J. Sullivan of Moorhead, Minn., arrived here last night to look after his affairs. The body will be interred in St. Mary's cemetery, probably tomorrow.

ARTIST DRAWS SEN. JOHNSON

Fessenden, Mar. 18.—The campaign itinerant of Senator Hiram W. Johnson in North Dakota was metamorphosed somewhat from the usual reception when Senator Johnson stepped off the morning's train for a few minutes at Fessenden, while en route to speak at Minot, when Ted Speiser, young local artist, contributor to "Life" and "Judge," drew Senator Johnson's picture with which the senator was highly elated and which he autographed.

Speiser lost no time in obtaining an interview with Senator Johnson. Evidently realizing the priority of the weather to campaign issues when remarks are in order he suggested that we were having California weather here in North Dakota for the past week.

"Yes," said Senator Johnson, "I brought it to you people direct from California."

Chicago, March 18.—Now that 1924 has got well started, around the track, what sort of year for business is it proving to be?

POLITICAL FAITH HEREDITARY?

This funny story went the rounds in America generations ago when the leading political parties were the Whigs and Tories. At a political meeting, a Tory proudly stood up and announced his political faith. Being asked why he was a Tory, he answered: "Because my father was one before me." "And why was your father a Tory?" "Because my grandfather was." "Huh!" grunted the Whig. "If your father and grandfather had both been fools, what would you be?" "A Whig," the Tory answered sweetly.

Political parties for many years were automatically perpetuated because the average voter "passed on" his political faith to his children. Boys, raised in a Republican home, naturally became Republican. So with Democrats.

Probably this was because politics was taken more seriously in the old days. Voters were gullible, believed everything the platform orators told them. They worked themselves into frenzies around election time—marched miles in torchlight processions, ever ready to fight with fists and bricks in support of their party's candidates. In this atmosphere, a Republican father taught his boys that Democrats were Satanic. Democratic pas said the same of their rivals.

Politics isn't taken as seriously now. Average intelligence is higher. Voters think more for themselves. And, too, the old-time elections were somewhat in the nature of national drunken debauches, even long before General Harrison's "hard cider" campaign, when liquor was served free in thousands of log cabins specially created all over the country by spellbinders.

When women got the vote, there was much speculation as to how many would be influenced by their husbands, in balloting. No way of answering this question in a broad sense, of course. But all of us know households where husband and wife vote opposite tickets, automatically canceling each other's vote.

It's claimed now, by many politicians who keep tab behind the scenes, that the political belief of husbands is steadily less and less powerful in influencing wives' votes.

The interesting possibility rises, that a peculiar new period of history is at hand, in which children will have their political faith educated into them by their mothers, just as their fathers used to guide their sons. At any rate, the average mother has a lot more influence with the children than father has.

WHY BARNUM QUIT DRINKING

Barnum, the circus man, in his old age made a speech in which he gave this description of the popularity of liquor when he was a boy, along about 1820:

"Everybody had barrels of cider in their cellars and drank cider spirits called 'gumption.' Professors of religion and the clergy all drank liquor. They drank it in all the hat and comb shops, the farmers had it at hay and harvest times. Every sort of excuse was made for being treated. A new journeyman must give a pint or quart of rum to pay his footing. If a man had a new coat he must 'sponge' it by treating. Even at funerals the clergy, mourners and friends drank liquor. At public vendues the auctioneer held a bottle of liquor in his hands and when bidding lagged he would cry, 'A dram to the next bidder.' The bid would be raised a cent, and the bidder would take his boldly and be the envy of most of the others."

Raised in this atmosphere of universal drinking, Barnum drank more or less until he was 37. Then he signed the pledge, went to his cellar and emptied his bottles upon the ground, according to his biography by M. R. Werner. Thereafter Barnum was a temperance worker, until he died 54 years later. Numerous times he took the platform to lecture.

Barnum summed up his ideas about liquor this way: "We must kill alcohol, or alcohol will kill us, or our friends." At one of his lectures a man in the audience, while Barnum was orating about alcohol as a poison, interrupted with: "How does it affect us, externally or internally?" Barnum answered: "Externally!"

Barnum was one of the first employers to refuse to have a drinker on the payroll. His contracts with performers and other employees had a clause prohibiting the drinking of any kind of hooch.

Werner tells this interesting Barnum story: When Jumbo the elephant was brought to New York from London, his keeper celebrated his safe voyage by giving Jumbo a quart of whisky.

Barnum shouted, "I object to my elephant drinking whisky."

But Jumbo downed the quart and followed it with a bottle of ale, having become a hardened drinker in England. Barnum raged.

WHOLESALE PRICES

Wholesale prices continue strong, which indicates the sellers have confidence in their ability to find lots of customers.

The authority, Dun's Review, reports average wholesale prices almost exactly the same as last October. These prices average a fourth higher than the low point of 1921.

The purchasing power of the consumer's dollar marks time at 60 cents on the dollar. That is, a dollar buys only three-fifths as much as before the war. To break even, a man must be making a correspondingly larger income.

A well digger who was buried six hours in Eastport, L. I., will recover, perhaps due to his subway training.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

A COURT DECISION WITH A KICK

It may be that the Supreme Judicial court of Massachusetts has "started something" in a decision just handed down by it.

Under Massachusetts law the apportionment of state senators and representatives must be based on the number of "legal voters." The House was in doubt about the meaning of the term and it appealed to the court. The latter answers that a legal voter is a registered voter. In other words, it is the number of citizens who take the trouble to have themselves registered as qualified voters.

In the decision may be the germ of a new idea useful in other states in getting people to register and vote. Massachusetts does not have a long time ago, for its devotion to the principle "no taxation without representation." Now it is winning some notice with a court declaration of the principle "representation according to registration."

And why shouldn't it be so? Able-bodied men and women who fail to register and to vote forfeit their own right to a voice in government, and they do it of their own motion. They are entitled to little consideration, if any, in determining how they shall be represented in the halls of legislation. They are even less entitled to representation than those who do not vote for the reason that the franchise has not been conferred on them.

Time and again we are faced by facts indicating that the fine philosophy about the people ruling is largely a humbug. Most of the ruling, in the first analysis, is done by a comparatively small part of the people, frequently by a minority, that minority being made up of those who have the citizenship decency of registering and voting.

Missouri voters had before them a few weeks ago twenty-one distinct proposals for as many amendments to the Constitution, alias the basic law of the state. There had been years of preparation for the popular referendum. Enthusiastic leadership was on the job. Elaborate organization had been in action to bring out the voters. Many of the proposals were important enough to merit the vote of every man and woman in the state, positive or negative. St. Louisans were presumed to be particularly interested, but the voters of that city fell down miserably. On a home rule amendment the city vote was 37,267 ayes and 11,674 nays, a total of 48,941 votes, of which had a population of 772,000 in 1920. Out over the state the result was not much more creditable.

Sooner or later, if the voters do not mend their ways, some form of compulsion will be brought to bear to make them understand that voting is both a duty and a privilege. In some measure the vote shirkers of Massachusetts have disenfranchised themselves by their failure to register. They deserve all that the court decision in the popular referendum, and a good deal more in the way of legal discipline. When the national progress falls as it failed in Missouri because of the slothful ness, or worse, of citizens, the duty of chastisement is at hand.—Minneapolis Tribune.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"You may go on with the trial," declared Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man, in a loud voice.

Nancy and Nick wondered who was to go on with the trial, but by and by the patent-leather cat got up, pulled down his red jacket and stroked his whiskers, and said soberly: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am here to take the part of the tin soldier. He didn't mean to run over the peanut boy and break his nose."

"I object!" barked the rubber dog, "and please don't get me excited or shall whistle through the top of my head. Perhaps he didn't mean to do it, but he did it just the same and I demand that he be punished."

Mister Fuzz Wuzz took a hammer and rapped loudly. "Order!" he called.

The cat and the dog and all the rest of the Doofmanns became quiet at once.

"I just wanted to say," said the cat, switching his long tail, "that the tin soldier never touched the peanut boy. It was his nose."

"Then," spoke up the rubber dog quickly, "Let's punish the horse. I insist that somebody be punished for breaking the peanut boy's nose."

"We shall call witnesses," said the cat with dignity. "I can show you that neither the horse nor the soldier were to blame. Will you please to tell your story, Mr. Tin Soldier."

"Certainly, sir!" said the tin soldier, riding up on his tin horse. "But, if you please, I'm a general, sir!"

Tell your story, please, general," corrected the cat, seating himself with dignity and smoothing his white neck ruff.

"That sounds much better," said the general. "It was this way. I was riding along Candy Street in Doofmann Land, when, without a bit of warning, the wooden waddle duck came rushing along as though he had been shot out of a gun. My horse shied to one side and then I heard a crunching. That's the first I knew of the peanut boy being anywhere near me. It was his nose that was being crushed."

"Heard!" cried the patent-leather cat, springing up. "It is the wooden waddle duck who should be on trial. It was all his fault!"

"Too Many Cooks"

"Please call the duck!" ordered Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Good!" said the dog, and he sat down and everybody else sat down, and the wooden waddle duck waddled up with a great clatter.

"Quack! Quack!" he declared. "What do you wish me to say?"

"Tell how you happened to scare the tin-soldier's, ahem, the general's horse," commanded Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Sure I will, your honor," said the duck. "But if anyone could have been more scared than I was, he was a dandy."

"Don't say 'dandy' here," ordered Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Beg your pardon, I'll say he was in a bad way then," said the duck.

"Don't say 'I'll say' in this court," thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "No slang is allowed."

"Is this a trial or a grammar class, please?" moved the cat.

Nancy and Nick forgot where they were and laughed.

"Order!" thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz so loudly that everybody jumped.

PROGRESS

By Berton Braley

They fell a tree
Which nature took two thousand years to grow;
They lay it low
In half a day or so.

And cut it up in boards and timbers
that
Will build a flat
And ugly row of houses
For workmen and their spouses—
And call it Progress!

They take a green
And lovely country, quiet and serene,
And build a smokey city
Ugly and gray and gritty—
And call it Progress!

They take a hill
Whose rugged cliffs gave every eye
a thrill,
And mine it for cement
Till all its sides are rent
And gashed and gaunt and gray—
And call it Progress!

It seems to me
That Progress need not be
A thing that must employ Man's skill and science mainly to destroy.

The beauty that is nature's
Why should man's Trail of advancement be so strewn with cans
And broken glass?

When shall we come to learn,
When shall we have the patience to discern
That beauty pays?—Ah, when we do,
Beauty shall glimmer everywhere we view—
And that is Progress.

REDUCING

The world is simply wild about reducing, so it seems, and calories have come into their own. Through exercise I'll fade away, the hefty person dreams and, too, I'll let the fat foods quite alone.

When early in the morning I rise, I'll have my daily run until my very sides are tired and sore. Of course I am depending that my fat will pay the toll, for it's not a breakfast roll, but on the floor.

I'll put my auto up on jacks and then my daily run. 'Twill make me move by foot where ever I go. I'll not throw off tomorrow what can be thrown off today for 'twould tend to make reducing rather slow.

The balance of the family can partake of what they choose. But me? I'll have a menu all of my own, shy of fats and carbohydrates. While they gain I'll slowly lose, though I fight reducing's battle all alone.

'Tis the dream of hefty people, just a dream that fades and dies. For intentions seldom last, though quite inspiring. It's too hard to give up eating when there's food before your eyes, and the daily exercising's much too tiring.

Gora regarded her with frank admiration, wholly unassumed. "Oh, you couldn't lose Clavey if you tried. He is mad about you. We can all see that, and I knew it before he did himself. It's only really—that I'm afraid you'll be bored to death with so much shop if you don't set up one for yourself."

"Oh, I never intend to be bored again as long as I live." Mary Zattiany was a very shrewd woman and she determined on a bold stroke. Her suspicion lingered but had lost its edge. Gora Dwight was deep and subtle but there was no doubt that she was honorable. "I shall tell you something," she said, "but you must give me your word that you will not betray me—not even to Lee."

Miss Dwight's mind, not her body, gave a slight stir of uneasiness. But she answered warmly: "Of course I promise."

"Very well, then. It is this. I shall never return to America. I sail in a fortnight. Lee follows soon after, and we shall be married in Austria."

"But—but—his play!" Miss Dwight was too startled to act. "He must be here for rehearsals. Some one has said that plays are not written, they're rewritten, and it's pretty close to the truth."

"I shall consent to his returning in time for rehearsals. Prolonged honeymoons are indiscreet. It is better to divide them into a series. I fancy the series might hold out indefinitely if adroitly spaced. Moreover, being a modern myself, I like new methods. And he will be too busy to miss me. I shall be equally busy in Vienna."

"But will he consent? Lee? He's not used to having his plans made for him. He's about the most dominating male I know."

"I feel sure he will when the time comes. It is woman's peculiar gift, you know, to convince the dominating male that he wants what she wants."

Gora laughed. But she also could turn mental somersaults. "I think it a splendid arrangement. Then we should not lose Lee altogether, for we really are devoted to him. He is an adorable creature for all his absurdities. But I can't endure the thought of losing you."

"You must pay me a long visit in Vienna. Many visits. I can assure you that you will find material there, under my guidance, for a really great novel."

Gora's eyes sparkled. She was all artist at once. "I should like that! How kind of you. And what a setting!"

"Yes, Austria is the most interesting country in Europe, and the most beautiful to look at—and describe."

"It will be heavenly," Gora made up her mind at once that she would waste no more ingenuity to stop this marriage. Its modernity appealed to her, and she foresaw new impulses to creation. "The American scene," she conceived, might grow monotonous with time, and with these daily recruits bent upon describing its minutiae with the relentless efficiency of the camera. And with all her soul she loved beauty. With the possible exception of Bavaria she knew Austria to be the darling of nature.

Once more she chose to believe this woman would manage Clavey to his own good, and to the satisfaction of his friends, who, as she well knew, were alarmed and alert. They were too polite to show it, but much of their enthusiasm for Madame Zattiany had dimmed with the knowledge that she was a scientific phenomenon. Fundamental the brilliant creative mind is quite as conservative as the worldly, or the inarticulate millions between, for they have common ancestors and common traditions. They feared not only to lose him, moreover, but had begun to ask one another if his career would not be wrecked.

Miss Dwight concluded that such an uncommon and romantic marriage might be a spur to Clavey's genius, which might weaken in a conventional marital drama set in the city of New York.

She rose and for the first time kissed Madame Zattiany. "It will be too perfect!" she said, "let me visit you in summer when he is rehearsing. He can arrange to have his first nights in September, and then write his next play in Austria, filling his time while you are absorbed in politics. Heavens, what a theme! Some day I'll use it. Perfectly delicious, of course."

"And I'll give you points," said Mary, laughing. She returned the other's embrace; but when she was alone she sighed and sank back in her chair, without picking up her book. Miss Gora Dwight had given her something to think off!

The last thing she wanted was a serial honeymoon. She wanted this man's companionship and his help. But she had slowly been forced to the conclusion that Clavey's genius was a mind whose enthusiasms could only be inspired by some form of creative art; politics would never appeal to it. In her comparison five ignorance of the denaturalized brain, she had believed that a brilliant gifted mind could concentrate itself upon any object with equal fertility and power, but she had seen too much of the Sophisticates of late, and studied Clavey in too many of his moods to cherish the illusion any longer. Playwrighting seemed to her a contemptible pastime compared with the hideous facts of life as exemplified in Europe, and she had restrained herself from an angry outburst more than once. But she was too philosophical, possibly too fatalistic, not to have dismissed this attitude eventually. Clavey could not be changed, but neither could she. There would be the usual compromises. After all, of what was life made up but of compromise? But the early glow of the wondrous dream had faded. The mistress was evidently the role nature had cast her to play. The vision of home, the complete matchmade, had gone the way of all dreams.

She was not sorry to forego the doubtful luxury of meditation on the sadness of life. When Miss Trevor's card was brought to her she told the servant to show her up and bring tea immediately. She was not interested in Agnes Trevor, a younger sister of Polly Vane, but at all events she would talk about her settlement work and give a comfortably commonplace atmosphere to the room in which tragic clouds were rising. As it had happened, Mary, during these past weeks, had seen little of New York women between the relics of her old set and their lively Society-loving daughters. The women

"The telephone, dear, was from Ruth. You will be glad to know that she has made it all up. I guess I was wrong, but I was jealous. It hurt me to think that you had given a confidence even to another woman that you wouldn't give to me. I am satisfied now, however, that she did not receive the money from Harry because the other day I happened in at her shop, and honestly it seemed to me that all the women in town were buying the most elaborate underwear at the most exorbitant prices. Ruth confided to me that someone had put up the money for her, but that she was glad she could make at least 75 per cent for that someone. I expect it was Walter Burke gave her the money. Ruth tells me she has entered suit against her husband for desertion, and although she did not say so, I expect it is agreed between them that she will marry Walter when he comes back. I hope she won't be sorry. You know, Leslie, I never did care for Burke, but I made such a mistake in Ellington that I almost doubt my summing up of any man's character after that. To return to Mrs. Atherton. Of course I insisted that she was very foolish and that you felt rather hurt at the stand she had taken about not mixing friendship with her business. Perhaps it is silly, she answered, but it is just one of my little vanities. I want to feel that all I get from you I deserve because I am an efficient business woman. I have already received more from Leslie than even friendship should take. She is the sweetest woman I have

ASK COOLIDGE TO STAND FOR HAUGEN'S BILL

Washington, March 18.—Farm representatives from the middle west urged President Coolidge today to give his support to the McNary-Haugen export corporation bill pending in congress.

Those who called upon the president were O. E. Bradford, president of the American Bureau of Education, S. H. Thompson, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, A. A. Sykes, member and C. W. Hunt, secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation.

They asserted that the middle west was in a worse condition than it had been at any time since the close of the war and that the farmer needed a higher purchasing power for what he has to sell, other than more credit in his pocket.

Mardi Gras To Be April 10

Several important matters were decided at the joint meeting of the heads of committees from Bismarck and Mandan Business and Professional clubs held in the Bismarck club rooms last evening. Plans were perfected for the entertainment of the state convention to be held in this city during the month of May.

At the meeting of the Bismarck club following the joint meeting, it was voted to rent the second floor of the old Franklin house which is now occupied by the Dunham Lumber Co. These rooms will all be made over into model club rooms and redecorated. Workmen are busy at the remodeling now and the rooms are to be in readiness for the entertainment of the state convention.

Miss Henrietta Beach was chosen chairman of the committee to stage the Mardi Gras or trade pageant which will be given in the city auditorium, April 10.

Large Crowd Hears Splendid Program

An unusually large crowd was present last evening at the fourth concert to be given by the St. Mary's band. Each number on the program was especially well given and marked progress was noted in the band numbers. The boys have been working diligently during the winter months and a number of quite accomplished musicians are in the organization.

The numbers on the program given by the little tots were especially good and the instructors can well take pride in the splendid St. Patrick's Day program. The tableau depicting the life of St. Patrick was very pretty and quite an educational feature.

At least one more concert will be given by the boys assisted by the students in the school, before the close of the school year.

NOVEL DANCING PARTY

The Yocmen were hosts at a novel and very pleasant dancing party last evening at their hall. About 75 couples were in attendance. The party was a St. Patrick's affair and the evenings entertainment was ushered in by a short grand march led by the committee on entertainment attired in Irish costumes. At the conclusion of the march, pretty green paper caps were showered upon the marchers from a basket suspended from the ceiling. Dancing was enjoyed until 12:30 when lunch was served.

GIVE ANOTHER PARTY

Invitations have been issued for another Eastern Star and Masonic dancing party to be given at the Masonic Temple Friday evening, March 21. The committee is making arrangements to introduce several novelties to add to the evenings entertainment. Irish features promise to be an important part of the evenings entertainment.

The telephone, dear, was from Ruth. You will be glad to know that she and I have made it all up. I guess I was wrong, but I was jealous. It hurt me to think that you had given a confidence even to another woman that you wouldn't give to me. I am satisfied now, however, that she did not receive the money from Harry because the other day I happened in at her shop, and honestly it seemed to me that all the women in town were buying the most elaborate underwear at the most exorbitant prices.

Ruth confided to me that someone had put up the money for her and that she was glad she could make at least 75 per cent for that someone.

I expect it was Walter Burke gave her the money.

Ruth tells me she has entered suit against her husband for desertion, and although she did not say so, I expect it is agreed between them that she will marry Walter when he comes back.

I hope she won't be sorry. You know, Leslie, I never did care for Burke, but I made such a mistake in Ellington that I almost doubt my summing up of any man's character after that.

To return to Mrs. Atherton. Of course I insisted that she was very foolish and that you felt rather hurt at the stand she had taken about not mixing friendship with her business.

"Perhaps it is silly," she answered, "but it is just one of my little vanities. I want to feel that all I get from you I deserve because I am an efficient business woman. I have already received more from Leslie than even friendship should take. She is the sweetest woman I have ever known. She has stood by me through thick and thin. I hope some day to let her know how I appreciate her."

Of course I fully agreed with her. I knew you had only to storm the citadel to take mother's heart into your keeping.

Poor mother! Naturally she is lonely and anyone who shows her the least attention gains her friendship at once.

She thinks she chooses her friends entirely upon their character and worthiness when the truth is, like most people, she chooses them entirely upon their seeming "interest" in her.

Mother is very self-centered. She doesn't take much interest in anything outside the four walls of her home and herself. She lives almost entirely in the past and she, of course, thinks that all young people are wrong if they for one moment do anything or say anything that was not done or said when she was young.

I have been very angry with her, Leslie, since our marriage, because through the influence of that venomous old maid, Priscilla Bradford, she has not treated you with the consideration that you deserved.

But I guess that is all over now for she is like a child, forgets all her quarrels and bad feelings of yesterday and is always ready to bring her doll clothes and come back and play in your yard.

After all, she is my mother, and I really cannot do enough for her to make up for her sacrifices and hard work for me when I was a boy. It makes me very happy to know that you are helping me do this.

When are you coming home? I want you, want you, dearest.

JACK.

ASK COOLIDGE TO STAND FOR HAUGEN'S BILL

Washington, March 18.—Farm representatives from the middle-west urged President Coolidge today to give his support to the McNary-Haugen export corporation bill pending in congress.

Those who called upon the president, were O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Bureau Federation; S. H. Thompson, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association; A. A. Sykes member and C. W. Hunt, secretary of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation.

They asserted that the middle-west was in a worse condition than it had been at any time since the close of the war and that the farmer needed a higher purchasing power for what he has to sell, other than more credit.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that they may be judged on the basis of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

A COURT DECISION WITH A KICK

It may be that the Supreme Judicial court of Massachusetts has "kicked something" in a decision just handed down by it.

Under Massachusetts law the appointment of state senators and representatives must be based on the number of citizens who take the trouble to have themselves registered as qualified voters.

The court has decided that the latter number is a voter's right to register. In other words, it is a right of the citizen to have his name on the list of voters.

Legislative representation is determined by the number of citizens who take the trouble to have themselves registered as qualified voters.

In the decision may be the germ of a new idea useful in other states in getting people to register and vote.

Massachusetts won a name a long time ago for its devotion to the principle "no taxation without representation."

And why shouldn't it be so? Able-bodied men and women who fail to register and to vote foreclose on their own right to a voice in government, and they do it of their own motion. They are entitled to little consideration, if any, in determining how many shall be represented in the halls of legislation.

They are even less entitled to representation than those who do not vote for the reason that the franchise has not been conferred on them.

Time and again we are faced by facts indicating that the fine phrase about the people ruling is largely a buncombe. Most of the ruling, in the first analysis, is done by a comparatively small part of the people, frequently by a minority, that minority being made up of those who have the citizenship decency of registering and voting.

Missouri voters had before them a few weeks ago twenty-one distinct proposals for many amendments to the constitution, alias the basic law of the state. There had been years of preparation for this popular referendum. Enthusiastic leadership was on the job. Elaborate organization had been in action to bring out the voters. Many of the proposals were important enough to merit the vote of every man and woman in the state, positive or negative. St. Louisans were presumed to be particularly interested, but the voters of that city fell down miserably.

On a home rule amendment the city vote was 37,247 ayes and 11,774 nays, a total of 49,021 votes in a city which had a population of 772,000 in 1920. Out over the state the result was not much more creditable.

Sooner or later, if the voters do not mend their ways, some form of compulsion will be brought to bear on them to make them understand that voting is both a duty and a privilege. In some measure the vote-shockers of Massachusetts have disenfranchised themselves by their failure to register. They deserve it that the court decision in question will bring upon them, and a good deal more in the way of local discipline. When constitutional progress fails as it failed in Missouri because of the selfishness, or worse, of citizens, the day of chastisement is at hand.—Minneapolis Tribune.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"You may go on with the trial," declared Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaver man, in a loud voice.

Nancy and Nick wondered who was to go on with the trial, but by and by the patent-leather cat got up, pulled down his red jacket and stroked his whiskers, and said soberly: "Take the part of the tin soldier. He didn't mean to run over the peanut boy and break his nose."

"I object!" barked the rubber dog, "and please don't get me excited or I shall whistle through the top of my head. Perhaps he didn't mean to do it, but he did it just the same and I demand that he be punished."

Mister Fuzz Wuzz took a hammer and rapped loudly. "Order!" he called.

The cat and the dog and all the rest of the Doofunnies became quiet at once.

"I just wanted to say," said the cat, switching his long tail, "that the tin soldier never touched the peanut boy. It was his horse."

"Then," spoke up the rubber dog quickly, "Let's punish the horse. I insist that somebody be punished for breaking the peanut boy's nose."

"We shall cat witnesses," said the cat with dignity. "I can show you that neither the horse nor the soldier were to blame. Will you please to tell your story, Mr. Tin Soldier."

"Certainly, sir," said the tin soldier, riding on his tin horse. "But, if you please, I'm a general, sir."

"Tell your story, please, general," corrected the cat, seating himself with dignity and smoothing his white neck ruff.

"That sounds much better," said the general. "It was this way. I was riding along Candy Street in One-fifth Land, when without a bit of warning, the wooden waddle duck came rushing along as though he had been shot out of a gun. My horse shied to one side and then I heard a crunching. That's the first I knew of the peanut boy being run over near me. It was his nose that was being crushed."

"Being crushed?" cried the patent-leather cat, springing up. "It is the wooden waddle duck who should be on trial. It was all his fault!"

"Too Many Cooks"

"Please call the duck!" ordered Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Good!" said the dog, and he sat down and everybody else sat down, and the wooden waddle duck waddled up with a great clatter.

"Quack! Quack!" he declared. "What do you wish me to say?"

"Tell how you happened to scare the tin-soldier's, ahem, the general's horse," commanded Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Sure I will, your honor," said the duck. "But if anyone could have been more scared than I was, he was a dandy."

"Don't say 'dandy' here," ordered Mister Fuzz Wuzz.

"Beg your pardon. 'I'll say he was in a bad way then," said the duck.

"Don't say 'I'll say' in this court," thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz. "No slang is allowed."

"Is this a trial or a grammar class, please?" sneered the cat.

Nancy and Nick forgot where they were and laughed.

"Order!" thundered Mister Fuzz Wuzz so loudly that everybody jumped.

PROGRESS

By Bertan Bralley

They fell a tree Which nature took two thousands years to grow; They lay it low In half a day or so.

And cut it up in boards and timbers that Will build a flat And ugly row of houses For workmen and their spouses— And call it Progress!

They take a green And lovely country, quiet and serene, And build a smoky city Ugly and gray and gritty— And call it Progress!

They take a hill Whose rugged cliffs gave every eye a thrill, And mine it for cement Till all its sides are rent And gashed and gaunt and gray— And call it Progress!

It seems to me That Progress need not be A thing that must employ Man's skill and science mainly to destroy The beauty that is nature's. Why should man's Trail of advancement be so strewn With wreckage?

When shall we come to learn, When shall we have the patience to discern That beauty pays?—Ah, when we do, Beauty shall glimmer everywhere we view— And that is Progress.

REDUCING

The world is simply wild about reducing, so it seems, and calories have come into their own. Through exercise I'll fade away, the hefty person dreams, and, too, I'll let the fat foods quite alone.

When early in the morn I rise, I'll have my daily roll until my very sides are tired and sore. Of course I am depending that my fat will pay the toll for it, not a breakfast roll, but on the floor.

I'll put my auto up on jacks and throw the key away. I'll make my move by foot where ever I go. I'll not throw off tomorrow what can be thrown off today for 't would tend to make reducing rather slow.

The balance of the family can partake of what they choose. But me? I'll have a menu all of my own, shy of fats and carbohydrates. While they gain I'll slowly lose, though I fight reducing's battle all alone.

'Tis the dream of hefty people, just a dream that fades and dies. For intentions seldom last, though quite inspiring. It's too hard to give up eating when there's food before your eyes, and the daily exercising's much too tiring.

Gora regarded her with frank admiration, wholly unassuming. "Oh, you couldn't lose Clavering if you tried. He is mad about you. We can all see that, and I know it before he did himself. It's only really—that I'm afraid you'll be bored to death with so much shop if you don't set up one for yourself."

"Oh, I never intend to be bored again as long as I live." Mary Zattiany was a very shrewd woman and she determined on a bold stroke. Her suspicion lingered but had lost its edge. Gora Dwight was deep and subtle but there was no doubt that she was honorable, could she. There would be the usual compromises. After all, of what was life made up but of compromise? But the early glow of the wondrous dream had faded. The mistress was evidently the role nature had cast her to play. The vision of home, the complete matchbox, had gone the way of all dreams.

XLIII

She was not sorry to forego the doubtful luxury of meditation on the sadness of life. When Miss Trevor's card was brought to her she told the servant to show her up and bring tea immediately. She was not interested in Agnes Trevor, a younger sister of Polly Vane, but at all events she would talk about her settlement work and give a comfortably commonplace atmosphere to the room in which tragic clouds were rising. As it had happened, Mary, during these past weeks, had seen little of New York women between the relics of her old set and their lively Society-loving daughters. The women between forty and fifty, whether devoted to fashion, politics, husbands, children, or good works, had so far escaped her, and Agnes Trevor, who lived with Mrs. Vane, was practically the only representative of the intermediate age with whom she had exchanged a dozen words. But the admirable spinster had taken up the cause of the Vienna children with enthusiasm and raised a good deal of money, besides contributing liberally herself. She was forty-two, and, although she was said to have been a beautiful girl, was now merely patrician in appearance, very tall and thin and spinsterish, with a clean but faded complexion, and hair-colored hair beginning to turn gray. She had left Society in her early twenties and devoted herself to moralizing the East Side.

She came in with a light step and an air of subdued bright energy, very smartly but plainly dressed in dark blue tweed, with a large black hat in which a wing had been accurately placed by the best milliner in New York. Her clothes were so well-worn, and her grooming was so meticulous, her accent so clean and crisp, her manner so devoid of patronage, yet subtly remote, her controlled heart so kind that she perennially fascinated the buxom, rather sloppy, preternaturally acute, and wholly unaristocratic young ladies of the East Side.

Mary, who had a dangerous habit of characterizing people in her Day Book, had written when she met Agnes Trevor: "She radiates intelligence, good will, cherishes innate superiority and uncompromising virility."

"Dear Mary!" she exclaimed in her crisp bright tones as she kissed her amiable hostess. "How delightful to find you alone. I was afraid you would be surrounded as usual."

"Oh, my novelty is wearing off," said Mary drily. "But I will tell them to admit no one else today. I find I enjoy one person at a time. One gets rather tired in New York of the unfinished sentence."

"Oh, do." Mary's quick eye took note of a certain repressed excitement in the fine eyes of her guest, who had taken an upright chair. Lounging did not accord with that spare ascetic figure. "And you are quite right. It is seldom one has anything like real conversation. One has to go for that to those of our older women who have given up Society to cultivate the intellects God gave them."

"Are there any?" murmured Mary.

"Oh, my dear, yes. But, of course, you've had no time to meet them in your mad whirl. Now that things have slowed down a bit you must meet them."

"I'm afraid it's too late. I sail in a fortnight."

"Oh!" Miss Trevor's voice shook oddly, and the slow color crept up her cheeks. But at that moment the tea was brought in.

"Will you pour it out?" asked Mary. "You feel rather lazy."

"Of course," Miss Trevor was brightly acquiescent. She sat herself herself before the table. The man returned with instructions that Madame was not at home to other callers.

HAUGEN SEES BILL RAISING WHEAT PRICES

Iowa Solon Firm That Measure Pending in Congress Would Benefit

Grand Forks, N. D., Mar. 18.—The Agricultural export Corporation proposed by the McNary-Haugen Bill would mean from 40c to 60c a bushel better prices for wheat than are present obtaining if it were in operation, according to Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa, chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture and co-author of the bill with Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, says a statement by the North Dakota Wheat Growers.

Producers of corn, soybeans, and other crops would receive similar price benefits, according to Mr. Haugen's statement, to the extent that prices for these products received by the farmer would be returned to a point equal in purchasing power to the prices that he received during the previous years of 1905 to 1914.

"It is a well known fact that the prices of our basic agricultural products have not increased over pre-war prices in proportion to the increase in prices of all other commodities which the farmer must purchase," said Mr. Haugen.

"In the McNary-Haugen bill, it is proposed to increase the prices on our basic agricultural products, which include wheat, corn and live stock, not only to the pre-war prices, but in addition an increase proportionate to the increase undergone by all other commodities."

"It is a well known fact that more agricultural products than can be used in our domestic consumption are produced, and this surplus must be exported and sold on the world market at world prices. On such products as we have a large exportable surplus the world price naturally largely dominates the domestic price, and naturally the exportable surplus must be eliminated if the domestic price is to be other than the world price."

MINE BLAST CAUSE GIVEN

Probably Result of Fire Boss Forcing Pocket, Says Statement

Salt Lake City, March 18.—A statement issued by C. B. Hotchkiss, assistant manager of the Utah Fuel company, said that evidence showed the explosion which resulted in the death of 171 men in number 2 main of Castle Gate was probably caused by the fire boss when he was endeavoring to force a small pocket of gas out of a room in the sixth left dip in the mine.

Investigator's Statement

The statement follows: "An exploration party composed of experienced state and government officials and coal mine officials, made a thorough examination of the sixth dip entry in the Castle Gate mine, number 2 and found evidence that the origin of the explosion in number 2 mine may have been at the face of number 2 room in this entry. There were also certain conditions which might later, on a thorough examination of the other parts of the mine, change the opinion of the exploration party. The indications are that a small amount of gas had been found in this room by the fire boss on his second daily examination and in attempting to remove the gas it was ignited by coming in contact with an open lamp."

Usual Precautions Taken

"All the rooms and entries in this level, including the work house, are said to have been sprinkled and the usual precautions seem to have been taken, and it will not be possible to make a definite decision as to the cause of the disaster until a thorough inspection of the remaining portions of the mine have been made, which will require several days."

MELLON AND WEEKS TO BE CALLED UPON

During numerous conferences, in his investigation with Muma and others in the film transaction, Holdridge quoted Muma as the principal author of damaging charges against Attorney General Daugherty and also William J. Burns, chief of the bureau of investigation.

Chief among the statements credited by Holdridge to Muma and which Holdridge finally reported, in June 1922, to Burns, concerning the fight film affair, were:

The alleged statement by Mr. Daugherty that: "If you put this across you ought to get a big cut, not less than 50 per cent."

Another alleged statement by Mr. Daugherty to Muma that he should take the matter up with Alfred R. Urien, a local lawyer previously identified as a participant in the transaction.

Another alleged statement by Mr. Daugherty that the law prohibited only transportation and not exhibition of the films.

An assertion by Muma that he had "things all fixed."

Alleged admission by Muma of a contract for the film exhibitions and passing of one check, in Urien's presence, for over $2,000.

Holdridge buttressed his story with copies of his official report to the department of justice and his own statements of interviews with Burns and others.

FILES BRIEF IN LOCAL CASE

F. O. Hellstrom, as attorney for consumers petitioning the railroad commission for a decrease in rates by the Hughes Electric Company, has filed a brief in which he alleges that proper accounting shows the company making over $114,000 a year, or 30 percent on the capital invested.

TWO BANKERS ARE INDICTED

Williams County Grand Jury Report Out Indictments

Williston, N. D., March 18.—The reporting out of seven indictments, including two against M. E. Wilson, president, and J. C. Haskett, cashier, of the closed Farmers State bank of Grenora, charging each with receiving deposits in an insolvent bank, marked the first week of the Williams county grand jury, which is still in session here.

The indictments, two charging violation of the banking laws, four alleging violation of the liquor law, and one charging grand larceny were reported out from the grand jury early Saturday night and District Judge George H. Moellring immediately issued bench warrants for the arrest of those indicted.

Those indicted in addition to the bankers are: Emil Gunderson of Ray, charged with bank larceny; Edwin Jacobson, charged with the manufacture and possession of utensils for the manufacture of liquor; Grant Minton, charged with the manufacture of liquor; H. S. Stickleland, charged with the manufacture and possession of utensils for the manufacture of liquor; S. Peterson of Alamo, a harnessmaker charged with keeping and maintaining a common nuisance.

Peterson, Jacobson, Minton and Stickleland are already in jail, having been arrested about three weeks ago and held pending the action of the grand jury.

Wilson, indicted in connection with the operations of the Grenora bank, is said to be the owner of a line of banks. He is reported to be in Minneapolis now while Haskett's cashier is residing in Grenora. Wilson was once president of the Williams County State bank of Williston now closed.

Speculation is rife here as to how extensive a scope the grand jury investigation may assume with some rumors current that practically every closed bank in the county will be investigated ere the grand jury adjourns.

President Criticized For Cutting Short Passion Players

Washington, March 18.—President Coolidge's action in cutting short Saturday a program of addresses at the reception to the Oberammergau Passion Players brought out an explanation from the White House today and stirred up debate in the senate.

In a letter to Anton Lang, the "Christus" of the players, Mr. Coolidge expressed pleasure that the visitors came to the White House and set forth that the only reason for the incident was the fact that it is not permissible for the President to receive public addresses from people of other nations except through diplomatic channels.

The incident was taken up in the senate by Senator Dill, Democrat, Washington, who said he regretted that the President had not taken a broader and more humane view of the delegation's plea in behalf of starving German children.

"So ah is," replied the negress, "but do you all s'pose ah'm gwine to let that strange nigger know ah got mah life insured?"

FIRPO WOULD QUIT THE RING

South American Says He Dislikes Notoriety

Buenos Aires, March 18.—Luis Firpo, champion heavyweight of South America, announced that he intended to abandon his career as a boxer after his meeting with Al Reich. Firpo and Reich are to fight a 15 round bout here April 5.

Firpo said he was sick and tired of pugilism and the notoriety that went with it. He had made enough money, he declared, to satisfy him and he wanted to retire and live his own quiet life.

His decision to quit the ring, Firpo went on, had been reached, notwithstanding pressure to the contrary on the part of numerous friends in the boxing world. He received today from Tex Rickard an offer of a half million dollars for matches with Harry Wills and Jack Dempsey. He said he told Rickard's agent here that he was not interested in the offer.

"Do not think I am saying this just to make a sensation," Firpo told the Associated Press. "I am tired of managers, trainers and promoters and of the whole boxing game."

GENE TUNNEY WINS BOUT

Held Victor on Points Over Jimmy Delaney

St. Paul, March 18.—Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, outpointed Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, in a fast 10-round bout here last night. The opinion of newspapermen, Tunney's rapid and vicious body punching, varied with occasional left hooks to the head giving him the victory.

Content to let Delaney assume the aggressive in the first part of the fight, Tunney took some hard punches in the first few rounds but later he released an attack against the body that had Delaney backing up and covering.

Delaney, at all times moving to the attack, also flashed forward with occasional drives for the body, which he varied with a straight left to the jaw, but when the American light heavyweight champion chose to exert himself, the St. Paul fighter was forced to see a cover that proved ineffectual against Tunney's lightning thrusts for the ribs.

Tunney demonstrated his superiority clearly in the closing rounds of the fight and for a time he abandoned his attack against Delaney's midsection to swing viciously and accurately for the head. Several times he put his hands and rights to the jaw, forcing Delaney into a clinch where his gloves beat a tattoo against the latter's ribs.

Delaney showed his most effective work in the fifth round when, just before the bell, he beat Tunney back to the ropes with hard lefts and rights to the chin, but the American champion evened matters next round by punching a bloody stream from Delaney's nose.

Tunney weighed 176½ pounds and Delaney 171.

BOUT STOPPED BY COMMISSION

Newark, N. J., March 18.—The 12-round bout between Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight, who conquered Paul Berlenbach at Madison Square Garden Friday night and Jackie Clarke, of Allentown, Pa., here last night, was stopped in the middle of the eighth round by Boxing Inspector Platt Adams, who declared himself "dissatisfied with Clarke's showing."

Inspector Adams ordered the money of both boxers held up and announced that he was stopping the fight. Commissioner Bugbee would investigate the fight.

Delaney was leading in points when the bout was stopped. Both fighters sparred cautiously for the first three rounds neither having the edge. Delaney then took the aggressive and leg Clarke for the remaining four and a half rounds but neither fighter showed tendency to mix it.

TENDLER STOPS MARCHANT

Philadelphia, March 18.—Lew Tandler of Philadelphia, stopped Ted Marchant of England, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10 round bout here last night. Tandler weighed 140½ and Marchant 141½.

Marchant was outclassed from the opening going to the canvas twice in the first round. In the fourth Tandler sent him to the ropes with a left to the jaw. The referee stopped the fight as Marchant was trying to get his hands up again.

LEROY WINS; KRAUSE LOSES

Helena, Mont., March 18.—Russie Leroy of Fargo, lightweight, defeated Mysterious Billy Smith of Portland, Ore., in every of 12 round bout last night and won the decision by an overwhelming margin. Leroy scored knockdowns in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds.

Bat Krause of Fargo was defeated by Al Webster of Casper, Wyo., in the 12 round semi-windup. Webster finished strong and won the fight in the last two rounds.

PAT MORAN LOSES FINAL DECISION

BY BILLY EVANS

Pat Moran, famous manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is denied a victory in the final decision against him after a bitter struggle.

He was game and smiling to the very end.

His great courage, so often displayed on the ball field, carried the battle with death into extra innings.

The doctors said his fighting spirit alone prolonged the battle at least 24 hours.

Billy Evans Says

Showing to advantage when the going is toughest is the supreme test. Coming through with a base hit, when a safe knock means the ball game, is far more difficult than with the bases empty.

The crisis, the pinch as we say in sport, is the toughest spot. It calls for the best that is in the athlete. If he has a failing in his makeup it will crop out at such a time.

Psychology plays its part in the old pinch. There are some athletes who are not lacking in courage perhaps, yet who invariably falter when it is up to them to deliver the punch that means victory.

Their temperament is such that they cannot rise to the situation. On the other hand certain athletes regarded as only ordinary in the long run shine in the pinch.

I know of big league players who seldom hit better than 250 who are more feared by pitchers than men who boast an average of 100 points better.

One of the most courageous exhibitions that has ever come under my observation on the ball field was the no-run, no-hit game Charlie Robertson of the Chicago White Sox pitched against Detroit.

In this game Robertson accomplished the unusual feat of not allowing a single Detroit player to reach first base. Each one of the 27 men to face him was disposed of in order.

The remarkable feature of this game was the fact that the spring of the year when pitchers are not their best and the advantage is always with the batsman; also that it was a recruit pitcher working against the hardest hitting aggregation in the American League.

However, to me the outstanding feature was the way Robertson worked under fire, the Detroit club using every legitimate method to break him down.

The contention was raised that Robertson was doctoring the ball. Trick pitching having been ruled out, such a practice was of course illegal.

Time after time, after a player had been retired, several members of the Detroit club would insist that the umpire take a look at the ball. It had been raining for several days prior to the game, the ground was slow and heavy, and when the ball struck the black dirt of the infield it soon became discolored.

Neither Dick Nallin nor myself who umpired the game, could see that Robertson was doing anything illegal, but to avoid possible protests threw out many balls and made Robertson work with new ones.

Through it all Robertson merely smiled, tossed the ball to the umpire whenever requested without the slightest show of indignation, and tended to his knitting.

During the last five innings the game was delayed a score of times to have the ball examined. And it seemed to me as if Robertson, realizing that he had the Tygers fussed, went through certain unnecessary operations simply to excite the curiosity of the opposition. It was the most courageous bit of pitching I have ever seen.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT

From Stark County

Kathryn L. Baird, Plaintiff-Appellant, vs. Ray M. Wetzel, Defendant. Edward Brothers Company, a corporation, Garnishee and Respondent.

SYLLABUS:

Where an appeal has been taken from an order of the district court which, in effect, vacated a previous order and judgment dismissing an appeal from a justice's court, and reinstates such appeal from the justice's court, upon the trial calendar, it is held, for reasons stated in the opinion.

(a) That, upon the perfecting of an appeal from the justice's court, the trial court acquires jurisdiction and it is the duty of the justice then to certify his record, and in the event of his failure so to do the district court may compel him to so certify his record.

(b) That it was within the discretion of the trial court to reinstate the appeal so dismissed for any inadvertence or excusable neglect of the appellant upon proper showing made.

In District Court, Stark County, Pugh J. Plaintiff has appealed from an order re-instating an appeal from a justice's court.

Affirmed.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT FROM STEELE COUNTY

State of North Dakota, Plaintiff and Respondent, vs. Webb Keillor, Defendant and Appellant.

SYLLABUS:

1. Where during the trial of a criminal cause, on application of the state, the trial is continued from day to day for several days and the jury during such continuance are permitted to go at large, defendant may not after a verdict of conviction urge prejudicial error on the part of the court in granting such continuances, where no objection was made at the time of the trial, and where during the course of the trial, the attention of the court was not called to any alleged prejudicial matters arising by reason of such continuances, although the defendant then had full knowledge thereof.

2. Where in a criminal cause a defendant testifies in his own behalf, he may for purposes of impeachment be asked on cross-examination whether he has not been convicted of a collateral crime.

3. Where a witness under cross-examination has admitted conviction of a previous collateral crime, such conviction is conclusive and is not open to explanation.

4. Where during the course of the trial questions are asked which are subject to objection, the objection is waived by a failure to make it when the error, if any, might have been avoided or corrected.

5. As a general rule a trial court will not be reversed for objectionable language of counsel during argument to the jury not called to his attention by timely objection.

Appeal from the district court of Steele County, Honorable A. T. Cole, J. AFFIRMED.

Church To Have Grand Opera

Nottingham, March 15.—In the opinion of the Rev. Simon Jones, there is no reason why good music, especially that of the operas, should not be produced in churches as a medium for uplifting the soul. He recently heard "Lohengrin," "Parsifal," and "Tannhauser," and announced his intention of producing grand opera in his church.

The three mentioned have been chosen as the first to be given.

Printing Press Slow in N. Dak., But Permanent

"The printing press was slow in reaching North Dakota, the last of the states to welcome it but unlike other western states North Dakota's first venture of the kind was a permanent one," says John C. Oswald, New York, preparing articles on the introduction of printing in the various states. The establishment of the Bismarck Tribune, he says, was North Dakota's first venture, and it has proved a permanent one.

FILES BRIEF IN LOCAL CASE

Two Bankers ARE INDICTED

Williams County Grand Jury Report Out Indictments

Williams County, N. D., March 18.—The report out of seven indictments, including two against M. E. Wilson, president, and J. C. Haskett, cashier, of the closed Farmers State bank of Grenora, charging each with receiving deposits in an insolvent bank, was made public today by the Williams county grand jury, which is still in session here. The indictments, two charging violation of the banking laws, four charging violation of the liquor law and one charging grand larceny, were reported out from the grand jury early Saturday night and District Judge George H. Moellering immediately issued bench warrants for the arrest of those indicted. Those indicted in addition to the bankers are Emil Gunderson of Bismarck, charged with grand larceny, Edwin Jacobson, charged with the manufacture and possession of utensils for the manufacture of liquor, Grant Minton, charged with the manufacture of liquor; H. Stuckland, charged with the manufacture and possession of utensils for the manufacture of liquor; S. Peterson of Alamo, a harness-maker charged with keeping and maintaining a common nuisance. Peterson, Jacobson, Minton and Stuckland are already in jail, having been arrested about three weeks ago and held pending the action of the grand jury. Wilson, indicted in connection with the operations of the Grenora bank, is said to be the owner of a line of banks. He is reported to be in Minneapolis now while Haskett his cashier is residing in Grenora. Wilson was once president of the Williams County State bank of Bismarck now closed. Speculation is rife here as to how extensive a scope the grand jury investigation may assume with some rumors current that practically every closed bank in the county will be investigated ere the grand jury adjourns.

MINE BLAST CAUSE GIVEN

Probably Result of Fire Boss Forcing Pocket, Says Statement

Salt Lake City, March 18.—A statement issued by C. B. Haskins, assistant manager, said that evidence showed the explosion which resulted in the death of 171 men in number 2 mine at Castle Gate was probably caused by the fire boss when he was endeavoring to force a small pocket of gas out of a room in the sixth left dip in the mine.

EXPLANATION IS GIVEN

President Criticized For Cutting Short Passion Players

Washington, March 18.—President Coolidge's action in cutting short Saturday a program of addresses at his reception to the Oberammergau Passion Players brought an explanation from the White House today and stirred up debate in the senate. In a letter to Anton Lung, the "host" of the players, Mr. Coolidge expressed pleasure that the visitors came to the White House and set forth that the only reason for the incident was the fact that it is not permissible for the President to receive public addresses from people of other nations except through diplomatic channels. The incident was taken up in the senate by Senator Bill, Democrat, Washington, who said he "regretted that the President had not taken in consideration and gave a view of the delegation, the plea in behalf of starving German children."

FIRPO WOULD QUIT THE RING

South American Says He Dislikes Notoriety

Buenos Aires, March 18.—Luis Firpo champion heavyweight of South America, announced that he intended to abandon his career as a boxer after his meeting with Al Reich. Firpo and Reich are to fight a 15 round bout here April 5. Firpo said he was sick and tired of pugilism and the notoriety that went with it. He had made enough money, he declared, to satisfy him, and he wanted to retire and live his own quiet life. His decision to quit the ring, Firpo went on, had been reached, notwithstanding pressure to the contrary on the part of numerous friends in the boxing world. He received today from Tex Rickard an offer of a half million dollars for matches with Harry Wills and Jack Dempsey. He said he told Rickard's agent, however, that he was not interested in the offer. "Do not think I am saying this just to make a sensation," Firpo told the Associated Press. "I am tired of managers, trainers and promoters and of the whole boxing game."

GENE TUNNEY WINS BOUT

Held Victor on Points Over Jimmy Delaney

St. Paul, March 18.—Gene Tunney, American light heavyweight champion, outpointed Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, in a fast 10-round bout here last night, in the opinion of newspapermen. Tunney's rapid and vicious body punching, varied with occasional left hooks to the head giving him the victory. Content to let Delaney assume the aggressive in the first part of the bout, Tunney took some hard punches in the first few rounds without an effective return. But later he released an attack against the body that had Delaney backing up and covering. Delaney, at all times moving to the attack, also flashed forward with occasional drives for the body which he varied with a straight left to the head. When the American light heavyweight champion chose to exert himself, the St. Paul fighter was forced to see a cover that proved ineffectual against Tunney's lightning thrusts for the ribs. Tunney demonstrated his superiority clearly in the closing rounds of the fight and for a time he abandoned his attack against Delaney's midsection to swing viciously and accurately for the head. Several times he put lefts and rights to the jaw, forcing Delaney into a clinch where his gloves beat a tattoo against the latter's ribs. Delaney showed his most effective work in the fifth round when, just before the bell, he beat Tunney back against the ropes with hard lefts and rights to the chin, but the American champion earned matters next round by punching a bloody stream from Delaney's nose. Tunney weighed 176½ pounds and Delaney 171.

BOU STOPPED BY COMMISSION

Newark, N. J., March 18.—The 12-round bout between Jack Delaney, Bridgeport middleweight, who conquered Paul Berlenbach at Madison Square Garden Friday night and Jackie Clarke, of Allentown, Pa., here last night, was stopped in the middle of the eighth round by Chief Boxing Inspector Platt Adams, who declared himself "unsatisfied with Clarke's showing."

TENDER STOPS MARCHANT

Philadelphia, March 18.—Tender of Philadelphia, stopped Ted Marchant of England, in the fourth round of their scheduled 10 round bout here last night. Tender weighed 140½, and Marchant 141½.

Marchant was outclassed from the opening

Marchant was outclassed from the opening going to the ropes twice in the first round. In the fourth Tender sent him to the ropes with a left to the jaw. The referee stopped the fight as Marchant was trying to get his hands up again.

LEROY WINS; KRAUSE LOSES

Helena, Mont., March 18.—Russie LeRoy of Fargo, lightweight, defeated Myerovich Billy Smith of Portland, Ore., in every 12 round bout last night and won the decision by an overwhelming margin. LeRoy scored knockdowns in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds.

Bat Krause of Fargo was defeated by Al Webster of Casper, Wyo., in the 12 round semi-windup. Webster finished strong and won the fight in the last two rounds.

PAT MORAN LOSES FINAL DECISION

BY BILLY EVANS
Pat Moran, famous manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is dead. The final decision went against him after a bitter struggle. He was game and smiling to the very end. His great courage, so often displayed on the ball field, carried the battle with death into extra innings. The doctors said his fighting spirit alone prolonged the battle at least 24 hours.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE

Wright, mortgagee, dated the 15th day of May, 1915, and filed for record in the office of the register of deeds of the county of Burleigh and state of North Dakota, recorded in Book 191 of Mortgages, on page 240, and assigned of record by said mortgagee to J. C. Seyster, will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises after notice of the front door of the court house, at the city of Bismarck, in the county of Burleigh and state of North Dakota, at the hour of 10 o'clock P. M. on the 22nd day of March, 1924, to satisfy the amount due upon such mortgage on the day of sale. The premises described in such mortgage and which will be sold to satisfy the same are as follows, to-wit: The Southeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter (SE¼) of NE¼ and Lot One (1) in Section Five (5) in Township One Hundred Forty-five (145), North Range Seventy-seven (77), West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, and Southeast Quarter of Southeast Quarter (SE¼) of SE¼ of Section Thirty-two (32) in Township One Hundred Forty-two (142), North Range Seventy-seven (77), West of the Fifth Principal Meridian, situated in the county of Burleigh and state of North Dakota, such mortgage at the date of sale the sum of One Thousand Twenty-six and 66-100ths Dollars, ($1,026.66) and the costs and expenses of foreclosure and sale.

Billy Evans Says

Showing to advantage when the going is toughest is the supreme test. Coming through with a bare hit, when a safe knock means the ball game, is far more difficult than with the bases empty. The crux, the pinch as we say in sport, is the tough spot. It calls for the best that is in the athlete. If he has a failing in his makeup it will crop out at such a time. Psychology plays its part in the old pinch. There are athletes who are not lacking in courage, perhaps, yet who invariably falter when it is up to them to deliver the punch that means victory. Their temperament is such that they cannot rise to the situation. On the other hand certain athletes regarded as only ordinary in the long run shine in the pinch. I know of big league players who seldom hit better than 250 who are more feared by pitchers than men who boast an average of 100 points better.

One of the most courageous exhibitions that has ever been seen in the ball field was the no-run, no-hit game Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox pitched against Detroit.

In this game Robertson accomplished the unusual feat of not allowing a single Detroit player to reach first base. Each one of the 27 men to face him was disposed of in order.

The remarkable feature of this game was the fact that it was in the spring of the year when pitchers are not their best and the advantage is always with the batsman; also that it was a recruit pitcher working against the hardest hitting aggregation in the American League.

However, to me the outstanding feature was the way Robertson worked under fire, the Detroit club using every legitimate method to break him down.

The contention was raised that

Robertson was doctoring the ball. Trick pitching having been ruled out, such a practice was of course illegal.

Time after time, after a player had been retired, several members of the Detroit club would insist that the umpire take a look at the ball. It had been raining for several days prior to the game, the ground was slow and sticky, and when the ball struck the black dirt of the infield it soon became discolored.

Neither Dick Nalin nor myself who umpired the game, could see that Robertson was doing anything illegal, but to avoid possible protests threw out many balls and made Robertson work with new ones.

Through it all Robertson merely smiled, tossed the ball to the umpire whenever requested without the slightest show of indignation, and tended to his knitting.

During the last five innings

the game was delayed a score of times to have the ball examined. And it seemed to me that if Robertson, realizing that he had the Tigers fussed, went through certain unnecessary operations simply to excite the curiosity of the opposition. It was the most courageous bit of pitching I have ever seen.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT

From St. Paul, Minn. Katharine E. Brainerd, Plaintiff-Appellant, vs. Ray M. Webster, Defendant. Edward Brothers Company, a corporation, Garnishee and Respondent.

DECISION OF SUPREME COURT

State of North Dakota, Plaintiff and Respondent, vs. Webb Keilior, Defendant and Appellant.

SYLLABUS: 1. Where, during the trial of a criminal cause, on application of the state, the trial is continued from day to day for several days and the jury during such continuance are permitted to go at large, defendant may not after a verdict of conviction urge prejudicial error on the part of the court in granting such continuance, where no objection was made at the time of the trial, and where during the course of the trial the attention of the court was not called to any alleged prejudicial matters arising by reason of such continuance, although the defendant then had full knowledge thereof.

2. Where in a criminal cause a defendant testifies in his own behalf, he may for purposes of impeachment be asked questions of the following tenor:—

(a) That, upon the perfecting of an appeal from the justice's court, the trial court acquires jurisdiction and it is the duty of the justice then to certify his record, and in the event of his failure so to do the district court may compel him to so certify his record.

(b) That it was within the discretion of the trial court to reinstate the appeal so dismissed for any inadvertence or excusable neglect of the appellant upon proper showing made.

In District Court, Stark County, N. D. Plaintiff has appealed from an order re-instating an appeal from a justice's court.

Affirmed.

Per Curiam Opinion.

Church To Have Grand Opera

Nottingham, March 15.—In the opinion of the Rev. Simon Jones, there is no reason why good music, especially that of the opera, should not be produced in churches as a medium for uplifting the soul. He recently heard of a church in "Parafall" and "Tannhauser" and announced his intention of producing grand opera in his church.

Printing Press Slow in N. Dak., But Permanent

The printing press was slow in reaching North Dakota, the last of the states to welcome it but unlike other western states North Dakota's first venture of the kind was a permanent one," says John C. Oswald, New York, preparing articles on the introduction of printing in the various states. The establishment of the Bismarck Tribune, he says, was North Dakota's first venture, and it has proved a permanent one.

Every Man Owes

Three Things to His Bank

The Equitable Trust Company of New York recently published the following letter which we are reprinting with their permission:

THE EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY, 37 Wall Street, New York.

Gentlemen:

You have published many advertisements about your obligations to me as a depositor. I think it is time for one of your customers to write an advertisement about his obligations to you, his bank.

As I see it, I owe you three things—and money (at the moment, thank the Lord, is not one of them). One I owe to you as well as to myself to maintain a good business reputation. To you because I expect you to demand this of your depositors. If I have business dealings with a customer of the Equitable, I assume that because he is an Equitable customer, he pays his bills, has regard to the sanctity of a contract, and is otherwise dependable in the part of others, unless I do my personal share in upholding it.

I owe it to you to maintain a vigilance on which you can make a profit. I expect you to maintain convenient offices, which means high rents, high taxes and other expenses. I call on you for a variety of services, many of which were never thought of as a part of banking ten years ago. You cannot meet these expenses and render these services unless you are making money. If you make no money on my money I am riding on the back of your other depositors. I don't want other riding on my back. I expect, therefore, not to ride, out to walk and to carry my share of your load.

I owe you an obligation to accept your decision cheerfully. If you sometime say "No" to me, I will say "No" to you. I want my money in your bank. I expect you to say "No" when you are invited to make speculative investments—because part of the money you invest is my money. I expect you to say "No" when you are asked to make questionable loans, or to pay too high a rate of interest, or to lend at too low a rate.

I want all the interest I can get, and all the accommodation I can get. But first of all I want to be dead sure that what money I have with you is absolutely safe. I can't be safe unless you are conservative. And any man or institution that is conservative must necessarily say "No" every day. If ever you say it to me therefore, I will say to you to believe that you are saying it because I am in the best interests of all your depositors of whom I am one.

FIND CUSTOMS QUEER

Steaming into Tokio bay gave one the impression of visiting a naval battle ground, according to "Tony" Flermer, who with "Spike" Thayer, Archie McPhee and other Bismarck boys is on an Oriental tour on the steamship President Madison, furnishing music on board the liner. In a letter received by Ralph Erick, Flermer records the unusual sensations of the Bismarck boys as they entered the foreign port.

"The first day on land in Japan has come and passed—it is a day that I shall never forget, for it furnished sights, the likeness of which cannot be beat," wrote Flermer.

"As we entered Tokio bay we saw an active volcano, and it was very active, too—smoke and ashes shooting up about 300 feet into the air. Prior to the quake the entrance to the harbor and mouth of the bay was well fortified. Several islands in the bay were just one mass of cement, iron and gun turrets. These little islands are only from 1,000 to 500 yards in diameter, just enough to get a bunch of fortifications on and only a few feet above the water line. Now they are all torn up. Cement and gun blocks and gun turrets standing in all directions. The bay had the appearance of a naval battle field. There were four planes, two balloons in the air, battle cruisers, several destroyers, an airplane carrier, and all at once a submarine came to the surface not over 200 yards from the ship. The bay was also just strewn with fishing boats and foreign passenger and freight boats. It surely presented a busy scene and looked so different from Seattle's entrance.

Docks Repaired
"The docks of Yokohama have been repaired so that we were able to dock and it did not take us long to get ashore. Of course the first thing that looked so peculiar was the clothes they wore—no socks, women and all, and shoes made of a sort of straw, woven together; just soles with a couple of straps to hold them onto their feet and underneath this a couple of thin blocks of wood, standing on end—in all raising their feet above the ground about five inches. I don't see how they can walk on them at all. I bought a pair, paid 50 yen—25 cents American money, and I'll bet they last the Japs a year, so they don't spend much money for shoes. Japs coming down the cement walk sound like a drove of horses.

"The town of Yokohama is all shot to pieces, not a building in the whole town but what was almost entirely ruined. The buildings were mostly of stone and brick and debris is scattered all over. Streets are very narrow and some not yet cleared for traffic.

Many Modern Buildings
"Four and six story buildings made of stone, concrete, brick and steel shook to pieces, with only one wall standing, as if they had been so much paper. But you should see these Japs work—just like a bunch of flies around a barrel of syrup. Everything is by hand, pick and shovel, and they haul debris away in carts. I saw one little Jap about the size of a 13-year-old boy—he was old of course but small—pulling a cart full of rocks. I'll bet he had a ton in the thing. Hundreds of these fellows pulling everything imaginable; one man pulling a log 50 feet long and two feet in diameter. Where horses are used they are hitched singly with one man leading the animal. Horses are all shaggy and seemingly overworked."

The entire party, Flermer said, made a trip about Yokohama and then started for Tokio, a 50-minute ride. This party had its first difficulty in this ride—the boys paid for first class passage on an electric train and by mistake got into a third class car which was filled with coolies. But the Japs are not sleepy, the boys found.

"Everything goes like clockwork," Flermer said, "and if you don't get on like you were trying to make a touchdown you not only get pushed aside but you don't get on."

After seeing from the train green fields—and not an inch of wasted ground—the party arrived in Tokio. "Talk about land, labor and capital," observed Flermer "about all I saw was labor."

Five Buildings Escape
Tokio, Flermer wrote, was affected by the earthquake in about one-half the city, the part which escaped destruction being very modern. There are a number of eight, 10 and 14 story buildings, he wrote.

"The people and the buildings did not seem to jibe at all," he wrote, "as the people looked so ancient and the buildings looked modern."

The party had wired the Imperial Hotel and booked in there for their brief stay. After seeing the manager they went back to the ship to get their orchestral instruments.

"I cannot describe the dance in detail but there was plenty of liquor and tea consumed," wrote Flermer. "Japs drink more tea than a Russian does vodka."

Flermer, who saw many things to amuse an American, found it would not be difficult for an American to quickly attire himself in the Japanese mode.

"If one wishes to be dressed in the prevailing fashions just put on a pair of wooden shoes, long underwear, a bathrobe and wrap a white bath towel around your head and you are ready for the street," he remarked. "People look like they are always ready for bed."

90 AND BUSY

DR. CHARLES W. ELLIOT

By Harold B. Matson
NEA Service Writer

Cambridge, Mass., March 18.—A prescription for health and mental alertness unto 90—

"Eat moderately, sleep at least seven hours a night with windows open, take regular exercise in the open air, use no stimulants, enjoy all natural delights without excess in any, and keep under all circumstances a serene spirit as possible."

It is Dr. Charles W. Elliot's answer to the world's question: What is your secret?

He will be 90 years old March 20.

"My experience does not furnish a short, explicit prescription for keeping health and working power, probably because many and various causes have contributed to the result," he says.

"That I have borne much labor and responsibility without suffering any temporary breakdowns, seems to be due—after the inheritance of a sound constitution—to my possession of a good muscular and nervous system, prescribed by open air exercise and the habit of moderate eating."

"It may have contributed to the fortunate result that at no time of my life have I ever made use of nerve stimulants like tea, coffee, tobacco or alcohol, although I have never been a total abstainer from any of these stimulants except coffee. When I have taken them it has always been in dilute form."

He is a firm believer in the good effects of change of one's environment. During his life he has always spent summer vacations in the country, and in his earlier days at sea in a sloop along the New England coast.

"It gave me a strong and wholesome change of air," Dr. Elliot explains, "and also of mental occupation."

the day of presidential preference primary.

The Grand Forks city election will not be held until April 1, this being the time for such election under the law in the opinion of W. J. Mayer, city attorney, although George Shafer, attorney general, holds that the city election should be held at the same time as the primary.

"FIRE BUG" BEING SOUGHT
Golden Valley, N. D., March 18.—Officials here are endeavoring to find tangible clues to the identity of a "fire-bug" responsible for a blaze which threatened for a time to destroy a two-story frame garage building owned by F. A. Barker, and under lease of Alvin Bechtle.

Old fires, which Mr. Bechtle declared were on a refuse pile in the rear of the plant during the afternoon, were piled on a second floor outside stairway landing, inflammable refuse placed within them, the whole mass soaked with kerosene and gasoline and ignited.

Well defined footprints in newly fallen snow formed the only clue to the incendiary. Several fires in Golden Valley within the past six months, one of which wiped out four or five business houses and offices have all been of such nature that investigators are convinced.

GOPHER SOLON IN POLICE COURT

Washington, Mar. 18.—(By the A. P.)—Rep. Harold Knutson of Minnesota and Leroy Hull, a 29-year-old government employee, had a preliminary hearing today at Arlington, Va., on grave charges preferred against them by officers who arrested them March 9 on a Virginia road just outside Washington.

Knutson appeared in the courtroom, accompanied by counsel and by Reps. Newton and Larson of Minnesota. He had pleaded not guilty when arrested a week ago and in a public statement had declared that he was victim of a "terrible mistake," and wholly innocent of the charge against him.

John Wise, one of the officers who made the arrest, was called on the witness stand. He testified he and another Arlington county traffic policeman named Burke came upon Knutson and Hull in an automobile parked about 150 feet from the road.

Windows Broken As N. P. Train Is Raked By Timber

Fargo, Mar. 18.—All outside windows on one side of the dining car on Northern Pacific passenger train No. 3 and windows in other cars were broken, handrails were torn off the sides of the cars and other slight damage was done to the coaches when the side of the train was raked by a heavy timber projecting from the side of a freight train which the passenger passed on the double track near Perham yesterday afternoon. Two of the coaches were taken out of the train when it reached Fargo and others put on in their place.

The timber was just long enough to reach the passenger train and it is believed that the most serious damage was done when the rocking of the cars threw them towards the freight. No inside windows were broken and no one was injured.

EXPECT HUGE INCOME TAX

Washington, March 17.—The American people in filing their income tax returns this month, poured $377,848,840 into the federal treasury and nearly $100,000,000 additional is expected before the end of the month. Reports were compiled at the treasury today from all of the 65 revenue districts, showing that the revenue collectors had actually received and deposited $256,507,516 and had received, but been unable to deposit because of the last minute rush an additional $121,341,324.

Actual and estimated collections as reported today included: Minnesota $4,777,895; North Dakota $133,662; South Dakota $217,030.

ROME EXTENDS GREAT WELCOME

Rome, March 18.—Rome extended a royal welcome in spirit to Archbishop Hayes of New York, and Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago, who arrived here from Paris. It was to have been a royal welcome in form, as well, but the crowd which gathered to welcome the two prelates who are to be raised to the cardinalate was so great that it became necessary to conduct the archbishops away from the vast assembly, although the royal waiting room had been prepared for their reception.

Scores of churchmen were at the station to greet the archbishops, and thousands of citizens struggled to catch a glimpse of them.

The prelates will be received by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state tomorrow.

TWO FORKS TOTS WANDER A MILE IN WORLD JAUNT

Grand Forks, N. D., March 18.—Allen Bek, 5, and David Tharp, 4, sons of professors at the state university and residing near that institution, started out to see the world.

After some three hours, and after many faculty members had scoured the surrounding territory on foot and in autos, the two youngsters were finally picked up near the state fair.

SHARE IN OLD ROOSEVELT RANCH TRADED FOR HOTEL

Wells, Minn., Mar. 18.—James Hurst has announced that he has traded the Hurst hotel here to Thomas Frankson, former Minnesota lieutenant governor, of St. Paul, for a half interest in a 5,120 acre ranch, 40 miles north of Medora, N. D., near the old Theodore Roosevelt ranch. Mr. Frankson retains a half interest in the ranch and takes possession of the hotel April 1.

Swift & Company's average earnings in 1923 were less than two cents per dollar of sales.

We often compare our earnings with sales, in order to show what a slight effect the earnings have on prices of the products we handle.

The reason we can operate on such a small margin is that we do a large volume of business, and get a fairly rapid turnover.

In 1923 our sales were about eight times as great as the average stock of goods carried.

Our earnings in 1923 were less than 9 per cent on capital stock, and only about 6 per cent on the total investment that our 46,000 shareholders have in the business.
